WILLKIE SEES GREAT GAIN IN THIRD TEST

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Forecasting a "remarkable" increase in his third ballot strength, Wendell Willkie calmly maintained today that he will be nominated as presidential candidate of the Republican party.

He said:

"I expect at least 100 votes on the first ballot, a substantial increase on the second, and a remarkable increase on the third ballot."

"My guess is I'll be nominated."

Willkie remained in conference until 3 a. m. today with Gov. H. E. Stassen of Minnesota, his newly appointed floor manager, on convention strategy.

MARTIN WIELDS MUCH STRENGTH

Convention Chairman Able To Turn Tide Either Way, Delegates Believe

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Republican Convention Chairman Joseph Martin, a quiet but forceful and astute politician, today loomed as the man who may tip the scales in favor of the winner of the Republican presidential nomination.

A potential nominee himself even though he does not seek the honor, Martin is in a position to sway the votes of scores of delegates if the anticipated deadlock develops in presidential balloting.

Martin ranks as a power in the convention because he is the leader of 168 house Republicans, because he managed the congressional campaign of 1938 in which the party scored a significant come-back and because he has friends in every section of the country.

A close friend of Gov. Alf Landon and Landon's floor-manager in the 1936 Cleveland convention, Martin already has held a series

Thirteen Names Presented To Convention; Fights Feature Night Meet

Leaders of the Republican convention said Thursday afternoon that balloting would start immediately after the session resumes and will continue until a standard-bearer has been named.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Senator Robert A. Taft won a heavy favorite's vote for the Republican presidential nomination today on rumors that he will receive indorsements from both former President Herbert Hoover and Governor Alf M. Landon before a decisive ballot is taken at the convention.

From reliable sources, it was reported that both Hoover and Landon have turned "thumbs" down" on Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive. On every side, Republican leaders said "Willkie has been stopped."

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—While his rivals declared they have "stopped Willkie," the Republican national convention today neared its hour of balloting with Senator Robert A. Taft the favorite, but with Thomas E. Dewey certain to lead on the first ballot.

The delegates today listened to speeches, placing five more names in nomination—after having four names presented last night. The balloting may start late this afternoon. In all, first ballot votes will be cast for thirteen Republicans, four of whom forego the pleasure of

A careful survey by International News Service indicated the first ballot will result as follows:

Dewey, 322;
Taft, 240;
Willkie, 122;
James, of Pensylvania, 72;
Vandenberg, 60;
Martin, Massachusetts, 34;
Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, 22;
Former President Hoover, 22;

Many Minds, One Thought: "Who Will It Be?"

HERE'S a between-session scene at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia. Delegates, candidates and curious Philadelphia townsfolk mingle on the sidewalks outside the municipal auditorium as they await the next session of the G.O.P. convention. And everyone is asking everyone else the same question: "Who do you think will be nominated?"

Plot To Murder Crew Of Esthonian Freight Ship Broken In Fight

NORFOLK, Va., June 27—An asserted Communist plot to murder the official personnel of the Esthonian freighter Kotkas and take over the ship was foiled early today by fiercely-battling officers of the vessel.

Led by a giant Russian known only as Ranalla, five firemen who had boasted, since Russia absorbed Esthonia, that "all on the ship are of equal rank," cut off all the ship's lights and then launched an attack on the Kotkas' officers. The mutineers also sought to attack two women members of the crew, as the Esthonian vessel lay at anchor in Norfolk Harbor.

The second officer of the Kotkas, as yet unidentified, drew his revolver and blazed away at the mutineers. Ranalla was shot down, a bullet through one leg.

Capt. Kallas and other officers waded into the mutineers with swinging fists, while First Officer Onni turned in a riot call.

When police arrived, the wounded Ranalla and his four companions, all badly battered, were huddled amidships in abject surrender.

Capt. Kallas said that the men had been in an ugly mood and had persistently refused to obey orders since they heard of the Russian conquest of Esthonia. The captain expressed the belief that the seamen are Communists, and that the move to seize his vessel was Communist-inspired.

The Esthonian officers' fierce opposition to the uprising quickly broke up the mutineers' attack on the female crew members.

The women — one the ship's cook, the other a stewardess — were in their quarters when the mutiny broke. The rebelling seamen attempted to enter, but were beaten off by Capt. Kallas and his aides.

One of the Kotkas' officers said that he had heard reports that Ranalla intended to try to sail the vessel across the Atlantic and turn it over to Russian authorities, after the officers were murdered.

GREEN APPROVES LAW TO OUTLAW BUND AND REDS

NEW YORK, June 27 — Outlawing of the Communist party and the German-American Bund as part of the national defense program was being demanded today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"This is not hysteria; it is plain common sense," Green told 1500 persons attending a testimonial dinner in his honor organized by Max Zaritsky, president of the United Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers. "We can no longer doubt that Communist Russia and Nazi Germany are financing, directing and encouraging organized treachery in the United States and in other countries of the Western Hemisphere."

SEVERE STORMS CUT OHIO CROPS IN SALEM AREA

CLEVELAND, June 27 — Severe rainstorms, accompanied by hail, were responsible for extensive damages to crops, farmers reported today from points in northern Ohio.

In the Salem area, hail damaged potato plants, fruit trees and corn stalks. The city was without electric service for 12 minutes when lightning hit a main line of the Ohio Edison Co. A bolt of lightning also decommissioned transformers in the Mullins Manufacturing Co., causing suspension of operations for three hours.

Storms which struck in the Canton area also did extensive damage, especially to the corn crop. The mercury in Canton dropped to 51.

At Kent, 20 trees were blown down and corn, celery and spinach crops were damaged.

LULL PREVAILS; LONDON AWAITS GERMAN ATTACK

By International News Service

For the sixth time in nine days, German bombers today again winged over England and Scotland. While it was known that some bombs were dropped, British authorities revealed no details other than to report that there was no serious damage done, and that casualties were slight.

At least two of the German air raiders were shot down, and it was stated that a third probably also was brought down from the heavily-clouded sky by either British fighting planes or anti-aircraft guns.

There was a lull in the news from European capitals today, as Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler worked feverishly to consolidate their gains in continental Europe before turning to their next task—hurling their combined totalitarian might against their sole remaining adversary — England.

Exactly when this onslaught may begin is not definitely known, as the Italo-German dictators are not in the habit of announcing their plans in advance.

But some observers saw in today's brief lull an ominous warning—the lull before the storm which at any moment may break

CHINESE CLAIM JAPS ENCIRCLE BRITISH COLONY

LONDON, June 27 — Quoting Chinese sources, the London Daily Mail today reported that the Japanese had completed encirclement of the British crown colony of Hongkong by occupying the Sauechung area.

Meanwhile, reports from Tokyo said the Japanese, taking advantage of the war in Europe, pushed forces toward the French Indo-China frontier and prepared to enforce a "Monroe Doctrine" in the Far East.

LONDON, June 27—French authorities in Indo-China today were reported taking precautions to cope with the possibility of a Japanese invasion of that colonial territory of France, according to a Reuters (British) new agency dispatch from Hongkong.

At the same time, a Reuters dispatch from Tokyo, quoting Domei a Japanese news agency, stated that the Japanese forces in South China had no intention of invading French Indo-China.

London Says Major Units Pledging Selves For Fight To Finish

LONDON, June 27—The British Government appeared to have won the support of a large portion of the French fleet today following reports that several major units had sailed into the North African bases of Cassablance and Algiers prepared to fight on.

These reports stated that the commanders of the French battle craft had assured General August Nogues, commander in chief of the French North African forces, that they would disregard the armistice with Germany and Italy signed by the government of Premier Marshal Petain.

Meanwhile, General Charles De Gaulle, former undersecretary of war in the Reynaud cabinet, in a radio address broadcast from London blamed Marshal Petain for France's defeat and called on all Frenchmen outside of the occupied area to rally to the cause of Great Britain.

The British Broadcasting Company threw its facilities into the battle for French support with a broadcast to all French naval units to put into French Colonial or British ports and join in French resistance.

This broadcast, according to reports, played up developments in the Far East where, it was claimed, Indo-China is threatened by Japan as the result of the Petain armistice.

From Bordeaux, however, came reports that the Petain government had ordered General Georges Catroux, governor of Indo-China, to return to France. He is to be replaced by Vice Admiral Jean

CHIEF OF POLICE HALTS PETITION BY CULT GROUP

Two Circleville men were stopped Wednesday afternoon by Police Chief W. F. McCrady from circulating petitions for "Jehovah's Witnesses" after several southend mothers reported to police headquarters that the individuals were asking their children to refrain from saluting the American Flag.

The petitions are being sent into central Ohio towns in the religious cult's efforts to gain permission from U. S. Judge Mell G. Underwood to use the Ohio State fairgrounds coliseum for their forthcoming national convention.

The cult has pending a federal court suit to enjoin state officials from refusing permission to use the huge hall, charging that such action constituted interference with freedom of worship.

Judge Underwood has set July 1 as a hearing date on the injunction suit.

Mayor W. B. Cady said that McCrady stopped the men from circulating their petitions after several mothers had called him. The mayor was angered by reports that the men were suggesting refusal to salute the flag.

"Jehovah's Witnesses" have been in several courts of the land because of their opposition to the salute.

Bessarabia And Bukovina, Lost In War, Restored; Moscow Takes Two Vital Bases On Black Sea, Danube

NEW HOSTILITY FLARE-UP AVERTED

Commanding Position In Southeastern Europe Taken; Turkey's Attitude On Territory Change Not Disclosed

BERLIN, June 27—Romania has decided to accept Soviet Russia's demands for return of Bessarabia and Bukovina, war-lost Russian provinces, the official German news agency DNB reported in a Budapest dispatch today.

According to DNB's information, the Soviet government served an ultimatum on Romania through the Romanian minister to Moscow, in which a reply was demanded by 10 p. m. tonight (3 p. m. Circleville time).

The ultimatum insisted on immediate return of the two provinces, as well as cession to Russia of naval bases at Constantza on the Black Sea and several Danubian ports.

The Romanian minister in Moscow immediately flashed word to his capital. King Carol summoned his cabinet into emergency session, and soon afterward DNB heard from Budapest that Romania had decided to accede, presumably thus preventing a new flare-up of hostilities in Central Europe.

Carol Sees Axis Partners

King Carol received the German and Italian ministers before discussing the Russian demands with his crown council.

Soviet possession of a naval base at Constanza and similar establishments on the Danube will give the Russians a commanding position in southeastern Europe. There was no indication as to Turkey's attitude vis-a-vis the new development.

Prior to the great war of 1914-1918, Bessarabia was part of Russia and Bukovina belonged to Austria-Hungary.

Originally, Bukovina was a principality of Moldavia under Turkish control. Russia seized it in 1769 and Austria took it five years later. In 1777, Turkey finally ceded the province to the dual monarchy and it remained under Hapsburg domination until the end of the World War.

When the map of Europe was re-carved in 1918, Romania received the two provinces under the treaties of St. Germain and Petit Trianon.

The Soviet Union during the intervening years has frequently given indications of demanding the return of Bessarabia-Bukovino, but took no definite steps in this direction, and has maintained friendly relations with Romania.

Litvinov's Promise

In fact, Maxim Litvinov, when foreign minister of the Soviet Union, in June, 1934, gave up Russia's claim to Bessarabia in return for a Romanian guarantee of the Soviet's eastern frontier. This was one of the many diplomatic steps taken by Russia, worried by the development of Japanese power in the East, sought to protect her western frontiers.

Bessarabia has an area of 17,146 square miles, with a population of 3,000,000. Nine hundred thousand persons live in Bukovina, which has an area of 4,030 square miles.

TWO MORE U. S. SHIPS TO RETURN REFUGEES

NEW YORK, June 27—Under State Department orders, the liners Washington and Manhattan were preparing today for swift dashes to Europe to rescue some 4,000 war-stranded Americans.

The Washington, which underwent a harrowing encounter with a submarine on its last trip to bring back refugees, will sail Tuesday to pick up 2,000 Americans at Galway, Ireland. The Manhattan will bring back 2,000 passengers from Lisbon.

BARNHILL TAKES PLACE AT HEAD OF ROTARY CLUB

Frank E. Barnhill, North Court Street, became the new president of the Rotary Club at its meeting Thursday noon in the American Hotel Hurricane. President Barnhill, who was vice-president of the club last year, replaced William Radcliff. Harry Heffner was made vice-president and John Ryan and Charles Gilmore reelected treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Present at the meeting were the two Circleville boys, Lloyd Jonne Jr. and Richard Brintlinger, who attended "Boy's State" in Columbus this year. Both boys told of their eperiences at the camp and expressed their appreciation to the Rotary Club and the American Legion for sponsoring them.

New chairmen of the Rotary club committees for the 1940-41 year include F. E. Barnhill, aims and objects committee; Harry Heffner, club service committee; William Radcliff, vocational service; R. L. Brehmer, classification; Harry Heffner, international service; Meeker Terwilliger, Rotary information; Karl Herrmann, Rotary foundation; Clark Will, finance; F. K. Blair, rural urban; Tom Wilson, public information; Harry Hill, sergeant-at-arms; Herman Hill, attendance and fellowship; Carl Hunter, crippled children; George Griffith, general program; George Burch, charity newsies and Ed Wallace, Boys' Work.

F. D. PUTS NAME ON TWO ACTIONS TO AID DEFENSES

WASHINGTON, June 27—President Roosevelt today signed the $1,766,903,900 supplemental military appropriation bill and the $1,157,711,357 relief bill—both of them designed to bulwark national defense.

The relief bill also bans aliens, Communists and Nazis from WPA work.

The big military supply measures carries funds for 3,000 fighting airplanes, provides for an increase in the standing army from 280,000 to 375,000 troops, and appropriates money for start of work on 68 new naval vessels.

The relief bill carried $975,650,000 for WPA and $50,000,000 for relief of Europe's war refugees. Under the bill, all aliens, Communists and members of bund groups will be outlawed from WPA employment, effective July 1.

Under the relief bill also, WPA funds can be used on national defense projects. If they are, the usual 25 percent contribution required from local sponsors of projects is waived.

CHINESE CLAIM JAPS ENCIRCLE BRITISH COLONY

LONDON, June 27 — Quoting Chinese sources, the London Daily Mail today reported that the Japanese had completed encirclement of the British crown colony of Hongkong by occupying the Sauechung area.

Meanwhile, reports from Tokyo said the Japanese, taking advantage of the war in Europe, pushed forces toward the French Indo-China frontier and prepared to enforce a "Monroe Doctrine" in the Far East.

LONDON, June 27—French authorities in Indo-China today were reported taking precautions to cope with the possibility of a Japanese invasion of that colonial territory of France, according to a Reuters (British) new agency dispatch from Hongkong.

At the same time, a Reuters dispatch from Tokyo, quoting Domei a Japanese news agency, stated that the Japanese forces in South China had no intention of invading French Indo-China.

David and Susan, ages 5 and 6, respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Hedges of near Ashville, were saddened Wednesday when a motorist stopped in front of their home, picked up their pet brown and white dog, and continued on his way. The youngsters, who spent many hours playing with the dog, wish that whoever took the dog would return it.

FRANCE'S SHIPS JOINING BRITISH AFRICAN FORCES

London Says Major Units Pledging Selves For Fight To Finish

LONDON, June 27—The British Government appeared to have won the support of a large portion of the French fleet today following reports that several major units had sailed into the North African bases of Cassablance and Algiers prepared to fight on.

These reports stated that the commanders of the French battle craft had assured General August Nogues, commander in chief of the French North African forces, that they would disregard the armistice with Germany and Italy signed by the government of Premier Marshal Petain.

Meanwhile, General Charles De Gaulle, former undersecretary of war in the Reynaud cabinet, in a radio address broadcast from London blamed Marshal Petain for France's defeat and called on all Frenchmen outside of the occupied area to rally to the cause of Great Britain.

The British Broadcasting Company threw its facilities into the battle for French support with a broadcast to all French naval units to put into French Colonial or British ports and join in French resistance.

This broadcast, according to reports, played up developments in the Far East where, it was claimed, Indo-China is threatened by Japan as the result of the Petain armistice.

From Bordeaux, however, came reports that the Petain government had ordered General Georges Catroux, governor of Indo-China, to return to France. He is to be replaced by Vice Admiral Jean

CHIEF OF POLICE HALTS PETITION BY CULT GROUP

Two Circleville men were stopped Wednesday afternoon by Police Chief W. F. McCrady from circulating petitions for "Jehovah's Witnesses" after several southend mothers reported to police headquarters that the individuals were asking their children to refrain from saluting the American Flag.

The petitions are being sent into central Ohio towns in the religious cult's efforts to gain permission from U. S. Judge Mell G. Underwood to use the Ohio State fairgrounds coliseum for their forthcoming national convention.

The cult has pending a federal court suit to enjoin state officials from refusing permission to use the huge hall, charging that such action constituted interference with freedom of worship.

Judge Underwood has set July 1 as a hearing date on the injunction suit.

Mayor W. B. Cady said that McCrady stopped the men from circulating their petitions after several mothers had called him. The mayor was angered by reports that the men were suggesting refusal to salute the flag.

"Jehovah's Witnesses" have been in several courts of the land because of their opposition to the salute.

PICKETS DEFY COURT

BARNHILL TAKES PLACE AT HEAD OF ROTARY CLUB

Frank E. Barnhill, North Court Street, became the new president of the Rotary Club at its meeting Thursday noon in the American Hotel Hurricane. President Barnhill, who was vice-president of the club last year, replaced William Radcliff. Harry Heffner was made vice-president and John Ryan and Charles Gilmore reelected treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Present at the meeting were the two Circleville boys, Lloyd Jonne Jr. and Richard Brintlinger, who attended "Boy's State" in Columbus this year. Both boys told of their eperiences at the camp and expressed their appreciation to the Rotary Club and the American Legion for sponsoring them.

New chairmen of the Rotary club committees for the 1940-41 year include F. E. Barnhill, aims and objects committee; Harry Heffner, club service committee; William Radcliff, vocational service; R. L. Brehmer, classification; Harry Heffner, international service; Meeker Terwilliger, Rotary information; Karl Herrmann, Rotary foundation; Clark Will, finance; F. K. Blair, rural urban; Tom Wilson, public information; Harry Hill, sergeant-at-arms; Herman Hill, attendance and fellowship; Carl Hunter, crippled children; George Griffith, general program; George Burch, charity newsies and Ed Wallace, Boys' Work.

F. D. PUTS NAME ON TWO ACTIONS TO AID DEFENSES

WASHINGTON, June 27—President Roosevelt today signed the $1,766,903,900 supplemental military appropriation bill and the $1,157,711,357 relief bill—both of them designed to bulwark national defense.

The relief bill also bans aliens, Communists and Nazis from WPA work.

The big military supply measures carries funds for 3,000 fighting airplanes, provides for an increase in the standing army from 280,000 to 375,000 troops, and appropriates money for start of work on 68 new naval vessels.

The relief bill carried $975,650,000 for WPA and $50,000,000 for relief of Europe's war refugees. Under the bill, all aliens, Communists and members of bund groups will be outlawed from WPA employment, effective July 1.

Under the relief bill also, WPA funds can be used on national defense projects. If they are, the usual 25 percent contribution required from local sponsors of projects is waived.

TWO MORE U. S. SHIPS TO RETURN REFUGEES

NEW YORK, June 27—Under State Department orders, the liners Washington and Manhattan were preparing today for swift dashes to Europe to rescue some 4,000 war-stranded Americans.

The Washington, which underwent a harrowing encounter with a submarine on its last trip to bring back refugees, will sail Tuesday to pick up 2,000 Americans at Galway, Ireland. The Manhattan will bring back 2,000 passengers from Lisbon.

750 BRITONS INTERNED

LONDON, June 27—A total of 750 British citizens has been interned in Britain's round-up against suspected "fifth-columnists," Home Secretary Sir John Anderson told the House of Commons today.

DISTRICT G. O. P. LEADERS STAND BACK OF TAFT

RENICK, DAVIS ON HAND

Most Buckeyes In Favor Of Early Balloting At Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 — Alternate-Delegate J. F. Furniss, Lancaster, of the 11th Ohio district, believes that Thomas E. Dewey is "slipping every minute" and that Wendell Willkie is the man U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft must defeat to win the Republican nomination, he told International News Service today.

Furniss and others in the 11th district delegation — Charles Drinkle, Lancaster, and Mrs. Madeline Hoytt, delegates, and Karl W. Brown, Roseville, alternate—are utilizing every free moment to attempt to convert delegates from other states to the Taft banner.

Tom Renick of Circleville, a state central committee member, also felt that the ranks of Ohio's favorite son are holding fast against Willkie onslaughts.

"It's getting better for Taft all the time," said Renick.

Ray Davis, Circleville, Republican nominee for Congress, also came to Philadelphia to lend his support to the Taft cause, as did Mrs. Lottie Randolph, New Lexington, state central committee woman.

Voicing a sentiment frequently heard from the Ohioans, Furniss declared that the Willkie "blitzkrieg" is proving a boomerang in many cases. He told one New York state delegate receiving 1500 telegrams in a single day, some of them in a "threatening" vein.

But most Buckeye delegates concede that Willkie is gaining strength daily and therefore hope for early balloting for the presidential nomination.

Spare Motors for U. S. Hawks

A supply sergeant at Randolph field, Texas, checks the supply of spare engines which are kept ready for instant replacement use. Owing to the rapid expansion of the pilot training program, the number of motors used by the United States army has greatly increased. A new or over-hauled engine is installed every 350 flying hours.

New Order Affects 14,000 On Payroll In Central Ohio Counties

"ANTI" INFLUENCE HIT

Workers And Administrative Officials Must Sign Three Statements

Order for all the 14,000 WPA employees in the Central Ohio district to swear to a new oath, confirming to the pattern laid down by Congress in the 1940-41 Relief Act, went forth this week from the office of District Manager J. L. Kelly.

Forms for the purpose of weeding out assorted "reds," "fifth columnists" and others with un-American intentions are being distributed. Every employee, from project workers to those in administrative positions, must subscribe to the oath by July 1. In Pickaway County, approximately 379 persons are affected.

Each person must swear to three facts:

1. That he is a citizen of the United States or he is not a citizen but owes his allegiance to the United States.

2. That he "does not and will not advocate or hold membership in any organization that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States."

3. That he is "not an alien, nor a Communist, nor a member of any Nazi Bund organization and that (he) will not become a Communist or a member of any Nazi Bund organization during any time (he) may be paid from funds appropriated to the Work Projects Administration."

The first and third parts of the oath are new, but every Ohio WPA employee during the last year has sworn to the second part immediately on accepting an assignment or appointment.

Attention is called on the form to a provision of the act making the signer liable to a maximum fine of $2000 or imprisonment of two years if he swears falsely.

Sumner, minors, residing and located on East Main Street, in the City of Muncie, Indiana, will take notice that on October 19, 1939, Jennie C. Grabill filed her petition against them in the Common Pleas Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, the same being Cause No. 18363 in said Court, for the partition of the following described Real Estate situated in the County of Pickaway and State of Ohio and in the Village of New Holland, towit: First Parcel: Beginning at a stake in line of Aaron Johnson in the center of the New Holland and Washington Pike; thence N 21½° W 138 feet to a stake; thence S 74¼° W 40 feet to a stake; thence S 21½° E 138 feet to the center of said Pike; thence with the center of said Pike N 80¾° E 40 feet to the beginning, containing 20¼ poles of land, being part of Survey No. 4138. Second Parcel: Beginning at stake in center of the New Holland and Washington Pike, corner to lot of Cora Christy; thence N 18½° W 136 feet; thence N 73° E 52½ feet; thence N 16¾° W 121 feet to a stake; thence S 75° W 56½ feet to a stake; thence N 26° W 108½ feet to a stake in line of C. A & C. R. R.; thence with said railroad S 82½° W 11 and 1/3rd feet to a stake; thence S 21¾° E 201 feet to an iron pin; thence S 18¾° E 163½ feet to the center of said Pike; thence with the center of said Pike N. 84¼° E 14½ feet to the place of beginning, containing 0.27 of an acre, being part of Survey No. 4138.

The Prayer of said petition is for the partition of said real estate, for an accounting of rents and profits since April, 1931, and for other relief authorized by law or equity. Said defendants are required to answer said petition on the 10th day of August, 1940 or judgment will be taken against them.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me what is wrong with my tulips? I planted the original bulbs three years ago last fall and they bloomed nicely last year and the year before. But this year there were more than half of them that did not bloom at all. I dug up part of the plants and there were a dozen or more small bulbs with just one leaf each.

ANSWER It is normal for tulips to dfvide and multiply. Unless these small bulbs are dug up after the foliage has died down and are replanted by themselves under good garden conditions, they will not be able to develop into blooming bulbs. May I, therefore, suggest that in a few weeks when they die down that you dig them and replant them in a row in some other part of your garden. You may if you wish keep them out of the ground until fall before replanting.

QUESTION: I have a red brick colonial home and a friend told me I should have a couple of Euonymus vines but could not tell me the name of the one that climbs and has red berries on it in the fall.

ANSWER: The fruiting form of the wintercreeper or Euonymus is Euonymus radicans vegetus. May I suggest that you be sure to plant two or more vines since they seem to fruit a little better than vines planted singly.

QUESTION: Will you please give me information regarding the care of my lawn? In the fall and spring, I plant fairly good seed after raking the old grass but my lawn still has several bare spots. I also notice a mold on the ground. In the event I need to fertilize, please inform me what type to use and at what time of the year to use it.

ANSWER: I always have felt that the average person uses far too much lawn seed and far too little fertilizer. Unless your lawn has bare spots larger than a foot in diameter, you will usually find that fertilizations will be far more advantageous than reseeding. I also question the raking off of the old grass since this, if it is left on, decomposes and adds organic matter to the soil, which most of the soils need badly. In regard to fertilization, I suggest you ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on lawns, which will give complete instructions on the care and fertilization. In the meantime you may apply two pounds of soybean meal to each 100 square feet of lawn or you may use a 10-6-4 commercial fertilizer at the same rate. The soybean meal and some commercial fertilizers have nitrogen in organic form so that instead of being all available at once it is available over a longer period of time and does not produce the sudden lush growth of the spring.

QUESTION: I would like to know what caused the bloom on my African violet to blast.

ANSWER: This may be caused by illuminating gas in the atmosphere or possibly to improper watering. We have a mimeographed leaflet on African violets which we send to anyone interested.

QUESTION: Should the bloom be cut off gladiolas as soon as the first ones open up to keep them from mixing or changing colors?

ANSWER: Gladiolas and other plants such as sweet peas, phlox, and iris do not mix. That is, the original plant always stays the color that it is. However, if seedlings are grown from these, then you would expect to get something different from the parent gladiolus. The cause of the belief that gladiolus mix is due to the fact that some varieties are much more vigorous and multiply faster than others. Then there are some varieties that are relatively weak growers, and unless care is taken to perpetuate them, they gradually pass out of the picture.

QUESTION: Are Tigridias hardy?

ANSWER: The Tigridias which are summer blooming bulbs with red, orange, pink, yellow, or white flowers usually spotted with yellow, are not hardy. They can be set out anytime from March until June and will bloom during July and August. The flowers are particularly brilliant and although they last only for one day there is always another one to take its place the next day.

QUESTION: I have an old Japanese barberry hedge which is three feet high but very scraggly and open at the bottom. Is there anything I can do to make it bushy and compact?

ANSWER: I would suggest that you cut it to within an inch or two of the ground. Although this should have been done before growth started, it can be done now. To stimulate new growth, I suggest that you apply four pounds of a 4-12-4 complete commercial fertilizer along both sides of the hedge to about two feet beyond the branches. Use four pounds of fertilizer to cover approximately 100 square feet of soil surface.

OHIO CITY MAY TAKE CHILDREN FROM ENGLAND

PORTSMOUTH, June 27 — Mayor Harold Clayton and members of the Portsmouth city council today heartily approved a suggestion that residents of their municipality offer temporary shelter to children evacuated from Portsmouth, England.

"It is a most commendable suggestion and merits the serious and prompt consideration of the citizens of Portsmouth, O.," Clayton said.

Responding to the idea, which originated in London, England, council promptly authorized the mayor to appoint a committee that would handle offers from citizens or groups willing to provide such shelter. Meanwhile, Clayton said his office would take care of offers pending organization of the committee.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

APPEALS COURT DECIDES BROWN MUST SERVE TERM

Carlos Brown, Circleville Township, must serve a prison sentence under a statutory charge, the district Court of Appeals decided in a decision received Thursday by Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder.

The case involved a neighbor girl of Brown's.

The court held that Brown had received a fair and impartial trial in the county Common Pleas court.

Seeds of those herbaceous perennials which come true may also be sown now for next year's planting. Among these are columbines, larkspur, foxgloves, canterbury bells, anchusas and violets.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

APPEALS COURT DECIDES BROWN MUST SERVE TERM

Carlos Brown, Circleville Township, must serve a prison sentence under a statutory charge, the district Court of Appeals decided in a decision received Thursday by Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder.

The case involved a neighbor girl of Brown's.

The court held that Brown had received a fair and impartial trial in the county Common Pleas court.

Seeds of those herbaceous perennials which come true may also be sown now for next year's planting. Among these are columbines, larkspur, foxgloves, canterbury bells, anchusas and violets.

MIDNIGHT TALK TO AIDES ADDS TO DEWEY HOPE

DEAL RUMORS HEARD

Delegates Believe District Attorney May Accept Second Place

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 — Thomas E. Dewey delivered a just before-the-balloting "pep talk" behind closed doors early today to fifty of his convention floor workers and when he emerged, all smiles, he confidently announced he "expected to be nominated on an early ballot."

It was quiet around Dewey's headquarters along about midnight and Dewey's press representatives even had announced that the candidate had gone to bed. But suddenly, at 1 a. m., groups of Dewey delegation representatives began flocking for Room 101 at his hotel headquarters.

Present, among others, were J. Russell Sprague, Dewey's manager, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Sims, Dewey's co-manager, one of the country's most experienced political strategists. A guard was stationed at the door as they filed in.

And then Dewey arrived. He looked fresh and chipper. The door was closed. From within came the sounds of handclapping, punctuating a talk Dewey was making to his loyal workers.

Finally Dewey emerged. He seemed surprised to find four reporters waiting for him in the corridor. Usually fifty or sixty reporters attend his Philadelphia press conferences. He flashed the Dewey smile and waited.

Extremely Confident

Asked for a "final statement," he looked at his wrist watch and said:

"At this moment (it was 1:40 a. m.) it looks better than at any other time. After reviewing the whole situation, I am extremely confident. I expect to be nominated on an early ballot."

Asked if any eleventh-hour "deal" had been made with any of the other candidates, Dewey replied:

"There absolutely has been no deal of any kind or character. There never has been any negotiations for a deal with any candidate."

Yet, as Dewey retired to his suite, talk of a deal persisted, although it was believed the young New York prosecutor would not enter into any negotiations until after it was demonstrated that he could not get the necessary 501 votes for the nomination.

Dewey, it was said, would "sit tight" until at least two or three ballots had been taken before making or receiving any overtures from any quarter. If any deal is made, it was expected to be with Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Sprague Predicts 410

Dewey's strategy is understood to be to throw in all Dewey votes in sight on the first ballot in the hope of going over the 500 mark as soon as possible. Dewey's estimate is that he will get between 370 and 410 on the first ballot. His manager, Sprague, predicts 410. Some of the Dewey leaders claim Dewey will receive an additional 52 votes on the second ballot.

If, however, Dewey's vote begins to slip and it becomes apparent he cannot achieve the necessary 501 then will come the time for the deal with the Taft people.

Inside gossip is that in such an event Dewey might consent to run for the vice presidency, with the result that the ticket would be Taft and Dewey. It was regarded by political observers as significant that the Taft forces exuded more outward confidence today than at any time since the Republicans assembled in Philadelphia. On all sides the wise ones were saying: "Wendell Willkie is stopped."

French Fall "Grounds" War Planes

THESE former United States army fighting planes which were to be shipped to Europe for possible service in France against the German invaders are shown at Mitchel field, Long Island, where they are held pending word from the Allied purchasing commission as to their eventual disposition. France's fall to Germany has upset the commission's plans. The ships may now be made part of the British Royal Air Force, for use in defense of the British Isles.

British Employing New Secret Planes In War

LONDON, June 27 — With the whole of northeastern Europe plunged into total warfare, the British Royal Air Force is today bringing all its aerial might into action against the German Air Force and Armies.

Up until this month the British Spitfire and Hurricane fighters, and the Wellington Wellesley and Bristol Blenheim bombers, had borne the brunt of the war in the air.

With the invasion of Holland and Belgium, however, three of the latest types of British warplanes were put into operation.

They were the Boulton-Paul Defiant two-seater fighter, the Bristol Beaufort fighter-bomber, and the Armstrong Whitworth Whitley twin-engined heavy bomber.

On R. A. F. Secret List

All these aircraft were on the R.A.F. secret list, and very litle information as to their speed, armaments and striking power is known.

Powered by a Rolls-Royce Merlin engine of 1,030 h. p. and fitted with a three-bladed controllable pitch airscrew, the Defiant has a top speed of 400 m. p. h.

It carries two batteries of automatic guns. One battery fires forward, while the other battery of four guns is mounted amidships in a power-operated turret. These four guns can fire either a broadside, a rear, aforward, or an upward stream of armor piercing bullets.

Will all guns in action simultaneously, the Defiant's rate of fire is believed to be about 15,000 rounds a minute. As a target the new aircraft is hard to hit. Its wing span of 39 feet 6 inches is 11 inches less than that of the Hurricane, and only four more than that of the Spitfire.

The aircraft's structure is of all-metal stressed skin, and its operational height 16,250 feet.

Fastest Two-Engined Bomber

The Bristol Beaufort is claimed to be the fastest twin-engined bomber in the world. While its actual speed is a secret, it is known to be capable of more than 300 m. p. h.

It carries a crew of four — pilot navigator, gunner and radio operator—and has a power-operated gun turret amidships, with guns mounted forward.

Christened "Jack of all trade" by the R. A. F., the Beaufort can be used as an ordinary long-range bomber, a torpedo bomber, or a long-range reconnaissance aircraft.

The Armstrong Whitworth Whitley is a twin-engined heavy bomber with a crew of five. Particulars of the performance of the latest version of this aircraft have not yet been revealed.

CITY FINDS GAS, FISH IN WELL DUG FOR WATER

ALAMOSA, Colo.—The city of Alamosa recently drilled a 1549 foot well to augment the city's artesian water supply.

Water is what the city was bargaining for, but fish and gas were thrown in for good measure.

Roy Boller, water superintendent, said he was unable to understand the fish and gas in the well, though the water is of first rate quality.

The gas sends forth a steady stream of bubbles with water as it gushes out of the deep well.

The fish, which are two to three inches long, swim about in a pool formed by the well at the foot of a big water tower, and City Engineer D. H. Edwards stated that while he has not seen them come out of the well, neither has he seen them come from anywhere else.

Artesian water comes from sand and gravel strata in Alamosa, and not from underground streams flowing through caverns, from which fish might come.

ISLE DEFENSES COMPLETE FOR NAZI INVASION

R. A. F. Pilots Go 2,000,000 Miles Each Month In Patrol Duties

VIGILANCE CONTINUES

Three Tactical Problems Put Before Aviators By German War

LONDON, June 27 — British air headquarters' plans to defend Britain against mass German air raids today were complete.

The fact that, during the war's first months, hundreds of German bombers failed to rain explosives on vital points in the United Kingdom, has not caused the Air Ministry to relax its vigilance. Its defense plans have been kept up-to-date from day to day, it was learned here.

R. A. F. pilots are flying 2,000,000 miles a month patrolling the shores of these islands, it was learned at the Air Ministry.

An ingenious statician there worked out that this was equivalent to 3,333 flights from London to Berlin.

The patrols were made by the one-seater Hurricane and Spitfire fighters along a 700-mile coastline at a height up to five miles.

A Wearisome Task

Pilots in the coastal patrol affirmed that far more trying than actual combat were the wearisome hours waiting "at the ready" for attacks.

"For them" an Air Ministry official said, "every minute is the minute before zero hour."

The largest raids on Britain thus far have been against Scapa Flow, the Orkney Islands naval base at the north end of Scotland, and also the entire east coast. But, according to official sources, not more than 100 bombers have ever been used at a time. They slipped in from the seas in twos and threes "at a high altitude," it was said.

Tactical Problems Faced

Therefore the R. A. F. command has been faced with three tactical problems:

1. To intercept single reconnaissance aircraft, which seldom cross the coast.
2. To defend shipping and fishing vessels against bombing and machine-gunning.
3. To intercept mine-laying seaplanes at night.

It was stated at the Air Ministry that in each type of raid, the German airmen adopt "tip-and-run" tactics. They use cloud and poor visibility to the full.

Contact Time Limited

"Because these raids are over the sea, the time available for fighter aircraft to make contact with the enemy is short," it was pointed out.

"In spite of these difficulties, our pilots shot down at least fifty raiders in the first seven months of the war. At least six enemy aircraft fell to anti-aircraft gunners."

In repulsing these raids, the British admitted the loss of only one plane by enemy action during the same period, with two pilots slightly wounded.

FIND OCTOPUS IN PIPE

LEG BREAKING A HABIT

Continue Fight

GENERAL Auguste Nogues, top, commander-in-chief of France's North African forces, and General Mittelhauser, bottom, commander of France's Near East armies, are reported to have decided to continue hostilities against the Axis powers.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, June 27

ALTHOUGH, according to the lunar transits, this may be a day of the liveliest of activities, with many bright spots and thrilling engagements, yet there are a few rather adverse symbols, calling for wary, circumspect and generally judicious conduct. Employers, superiors or others having authority may not be too friendly or approachable. Put your best foot forward with these, especially if you have some big and laudable proposition calling for joint or group action. Enmity, jealousy and discord may prevail in business and private relations. Be diplomatic. Short journeys, writings, publicity, all youthful enterprises thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year, with possible minor changes, travel, or "new deals" definitely to the advantage, although such propitious denouements may be the result of vigorous and determined personal endeavor, as employers, superiors and others whose influence may be desirable may be found wanting. However, expansive and sound projects for the public good or for specific group welfare may have their appeal. In all contacts there is need for tact, finesse, amiability, in order to break down possible jealousy, enmity or friction. Gay youthful procedures flourish.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, brilliant, quick-thinking and swift-acting, with excellent business and intellectual talents, bespeaking for it major success despite opposition from high places.

FIVE-LEGGED FROG

COLUSA, Cal.—An amphibian that would prove valuable in a frog jumping contest is a five-legged frog being exhibited at Colusa by Harry Taylor. Weighing one pound, the croaker has an extra hind leg protruding from the left hip ahead of the normal leg. The frog actually uses the extra leg in jumping.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

COFFIN DRAPES

Information has come to me that the War Department is asking manufacturers for bids on a total of 150,000 interment flags. These are the flags which are used to drape the coffins of American soldiers and sailors. It is three times the normal order.

Whatever may be said of the Administration's failure to be prepared with planes, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, or modern rifles, it is apparent that it does not intend to be reproached with not having enough flags with which to cover our dead.

It is time for plain talk. As Senator Lundeen has just said, "There is no use to camoutlage this bloody business into which we are being led, step by step, into final, total war."

Women of America, it is time for you to wake up.

PETTENGILL

On June 10, Mussolini committed the Italian people to war. On that same day Mr. Roosevelt, at the University of Virginia, committed this country to a military alliance with Britain and France. Mussolini acted alone. Mr. Roosevelt acted alone. Congress had not authorized him to make an alliance.

If one man in Italy, and one man in the United States can make the peace or war policy of millions of people, what difference is there between Fascism in Italy and Mr. Roosevelt's variety of National Socialism? If Hitler and Mussolini can meet in a railroad car in the Alps and secretly plot the future of millions of people, without action by their legislative bodies, and Mr. Roosevelt, without action by Congress, can fix the fate of the American people, the question is whether we still have a republican form of government.

Congress alone has the final power to enter into alliances with foreign powers. Mr. Roosevelt has no such right of power.

The President has no power to declare war. Only Congress can declare war. The President may negotiate treaties or alliances, but they are not valid unless the consent of the Senate is given to them. This was sufficiently demonstrated by the Versailles Treaty, the League of Nations, the World Court, and the Guarantee Pact to defend France from aggression. None of these have ever been agreed to by Congress or the Senatte or the people. Mr. Roosevelt attempted, in substance to declare the Guarantee Pact to be in force years after it had been repudiated, and without any intervening authority to do so.

Mr. Roosevelt has the right to recommend to Congress what treaties, alliances or other public policies he thinks it should adopt. At the time he spoke he had sent no message to Congress advocating an alliance with Britain and France. On the contrary, Senator Pepper's resolution to authorize the President to sell government owned airplanes, etc., to the Allies had twice been voted down by a Senate committee, once by a vote of 12 to 1, and again by a vote of 19 to 2.

Despite this Mr. Roosevelt said flatly that "we will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation." He did not say that he would recommend this course to Congress. He claimed to speak officially for the "nation." This speech was an international broadcast. It was immediately translated into seven languages. It was interpreted in every capital in the world as a military alliance. American newspapers immediately described it as a "pledge" of military support.

Mr. Roosevelt had no constitutional right or power to make such a "pledge." It is obvious that he intended to confront Congress with a fait accompli (an accomplished fact). He wanted to force the hand of Congress to do something which without pressure and with full information it might not do.

It may be that the American people want to make this alliance —the same kind of axis that Italy had with Germany, concluded by two men. It may be that Congress will now ratify it. It may be that the American people want to have plenty of coffin drapes on hand.

But whether Congress decides on a military alliance, or whether Mr. Roosevelt decides on it, is precisely the difference between a constitutional republic and a Nazi America.

Mr. Roosevelt claims to speak for an "overwhelming majority" of the American people. That may be so. But neither the Gallop poll whipped up by the White House scareheads of submarines off Boston, or bombers over St. Louis, nor Dorothy Thompson, William Allen White, nor any number of college presidents and Anglican bishops constitute the Congress of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt also violated his platform pledge in 1936 to make no "political commitment" which might draw this country into "any war anywhere." This is a minor matter, perhaps, as the people have become quite cynical of platform pledges.

Mr. Roosevelt's leaders want Congress to adjourn. The people and particularly the mothers in this land, had better insist that Congress stay in Washington. There is no time to lose. KEEP CONGRESS IN SESSION.

ISLE DEFENSES COMPLETE FOR NAZI INVASION

R. A. F. Pilots Go 2,000,000 Miles Each Month In Patrol Duties

VIGILANCE CONTINUES

Three Tactical Problems Put Before Aviators By German War

LONDON, June 27 — British air headquarters' plans to defend Britain against mass German air raids today were complete.

The fact that, during the war's first months, hundreds of German bombers failed to rain explosives on vital points in the United Kingdom, has not caused the Air Ministry to relax its vigilance. Its defense plans have been kept up-to-date from day to day, it was learned here.

R. A. F. pilots are flying 2,000,000 miles a month patrolling the shores of these islands, it was learned at the Air Ministry.

An ingenious statician there worked out that this was equivalent to 3,333 flights from London to Berlin.

The patrols were made by the one-seater Hurricane and Spitfire fighters along a 700-mile coastline at a height up to five miles.

A Wearisome Task

Pilots in the coastal patrol affirmed that far more trying than actual combat were the wearisome hours waiting "at the ready" for attacks.

"For them" an Air Ministry official said, "every minute is the minute before zero hour."

The largest raids on Britain thus far have been against Scapa Flow, the Orkney Islands naval base at the north end of Scotland, and also the entire east coast. But, according to official sources, not more than 100 bombers have ever been used at a time. They slipped in from the seas in twos and threes "at a high altitude," it was said.

Tactical Problems Faced

Therefore the R. A. F. command has been faced with three tactical problems:

1. To intercept single reconnaissance aircraft, which seldom cross the coast.
2. To defend shipping and fishing vessels against bombing and machine-gunning.
3. To intercept mine-laying seaplanes at night.

It was stated at the Air Ministry that in each type of raid, the German airmen adopt "tip-and-run" tactics. They use cloud and poor visibility to the full.

Contact Time Limited

"Because these raids are over the sea, the time available for fighter aircraft to make contact with the enemy is short," it was pointed out.

"In spite of these difficulties, our pilots shot down at least fifty raiders in the first seven months of the war. At least six enemy aircraft fell to anti-aircraft gunners."

In repulsing these raids, the British admitted the loss of only one plane by enemy action during the same period, with two pilots slightly wounded.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, June 27

ALTHOUGH, according to the lunar transits, this may be a day of the liveliest of activities, with many bright spots and thrilling engagements, yet there are a few rather adverse symbols, calling for wary, circumspect and generally judicious conduct. Employers, superiors or others having authority may not be too friendly or approachable. Put your best foot forward with these, especially if you have some big and laudable proposition calling for joint or group action. Enmity, jealousy and discord may prevail in business and private relations. Be diplomatic. Short journeys, writings, publicity, all youthful enterprises thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year, with possible minor changes, travel, or "new deals" definitely to the advantage, although such propitious denouements may be the result of vigorous and determined personal endeavor, as employers, superiors and others whose influence may be desirable may be found wanting. However, expansive and sound projects for the public good or for specific group welfare may have their appeal. In all contacts there is need for tact, finesse, amiability, in order to break down possible jealousy, enmity or friction. Gay youthful procedures flourish.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, brilliant, quick-thinking and swift-acting, with excellent business and intellectual talents, bespeaking for it major success despite opposition from high places.

FIVE-LEGGED FROG

COLUSA, Cal.—An amphibian that would prove valuable in a frog jumping contest is a five-legged frog being exhibited at Colusa by Harry Taylor. Weighing one pound, the croaker has an extra hind leg protruding from the left hip ahead of the normal leg. The frog actually uses the extra leg in jumping.

COFFIN DRAPES

Information has come to me that the War Department is asking manufacturers for bids on a total of 150,000 interment flags. These are the flags which are used to drape the coffins of American soldiers and sailors. It is three times the normal order.

Whatever may be said of the Administration's failure to be prepared with planes, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, or modern rifles, it is apparent that it does not intend to be reproached with not having enough flags with which to cover our dead.

It is time for plain talk. As Senator Lundeen has just said, "There is no use to camouflage this bloody business into which we are being led, step by step, into final, total war."

Women of America, it is time for you to wake up.

PETTENGILL

On June 10, Mussolini committed the Italian people to war. On that same day Mr. Roosevelt, at the University of Virginia, committed this country to a military alliance with Britain and France. Mussolini acted alone. Mr. Roosevelt acted alone. Congress had not authorized him to make an alliance.

If one man in Italy, and one man in the United States can make the peace or war policy of millions of people, what difference is there between Fascism in Italy and Mr. Roosevelt's variety of National Socialism? If Hitler and Mussolini can meet in a railroad car in the Alps and secretly plot the future of millions of people, without action by their legislative bodies, and Mr. Roosevelt, without action by Congress, can fix the fate of the American people, the question is whether we still have a republican form of government.

Congress alone has the final power to enter into alliances with foreign powers. Mr. Roosevelt has no such right of power.

The President has no power to declare war. Only Congress can declare war. The President may negotiate treaties or alliances, but they are not valid unless the consent of the Senate is given to them. This was sufficiently demonstrated by the Versailles Treaty, the League of Nations, the World Court, and the Guarantee Pact to defend France from aggression. None of these have ever been agreed to by Congress or the Senatte or the people. Mr. Roosevelt attempted, in substance to declare the Guarantee Pact to be in force years after it had been repudiated, and without any intervening authority to do so.

Mr. Roosevelt has the right to recommend to Congress what treaties, alliances or other public policies he thinks it should adopt. At the time he spoke he had sent no message to Congress advocating an alliance with Britain and France. On the contrary, Senator Pepper's resolution to authorize the President to sell government owned airplanes, etc., to the Allies had twice been voted down by a Senate committee, once by a vote of 12 to 1, and again by a vote of 19 to 2.

Despite this Mr. Roosevelt said flatly that "we will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation." He did not say that he would recommend this course to Congress. He claimed to speak officially for the "nation." This speech was an international broadcast. It was immediately translated into seven languages. It was interpreted in every capital in the world as a military alliance. American newspapers immediately described it as a "pledge" of military support.

Mr. Roosevelt had no constitutional right or power to make such a "pledge." It is obvious that he intended to confront Congress with a fait accompli (an accomplished fact). He wanted to force the hand of Congress to do something which without pressure and with full information it might not do.

It may be that the American people want to make this alliance—the same kind of axis that Italy had with Germany, concluded by two men. It may be that Congress will now ratify it. It may be that the American people want to have plenty of coffin drapes on hand.

But whether Congress decides on a military alliance, or whether Mr. Roosevelt decides on it, is precisely the difference between a constitutional republic and a Nazi America.

Mr. Roosevelt claims to speak for an "overwhelming majority" of the American people. That may be so. But neither the Gallop poll whipped up by the White House scareheads of submarines off Boston, or bombers over St. Louis, nor Dorothy Thompson, William Allen White, nor any number of college presidents and Anglican bishops constitute the Congress of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt also violated his platform pledge in 1936 to make no "political commitment" which might draw this country into "any war anywhere." This is a minor matter, perhaps, as the people have become quite cynical of platform pledges.

Mr. Roosevelt's leaders want Congress to adjourn. The people and particularly the mothers in this land, had better insist that Congress stay in Washington. There is no time to lose. KEEP CONGRESS IN SESSION.

PACIFIC TROUBLE

JAPAN at last comes into the open and shows her hand. She has a definite plan for extending her empire. She will probably start by taking over French Indo-China, which is not only a rich and desirable country in itself but controls the route by which China has been getting war supplies to resist Japan.

With that colony would probably go Siam and the Malay Peninsula, which controls the important Strait of Malacca and the route from the Pacific to India. Below and around that region are the big, populous and enormously rich Dutch East Indies. To the east are the South China Sea and our Philippines.

After biting off Indo-China and those Dutch Indies, Japan would be ready to gobble up the Philippines. Then she would have an empire, even without China, and would be truly one of the world's great Fascist powers. China might fall to her without much effort.

We Americans have to decide rather quickly whether we are willing to have Japan follow such a program and timetable. We don't want to see French China and the Dutch Indies absorbed in that fashion, but do we want to fight for them? We don't want Japan in the Philippines, but, after deciding to let them go in 1946, will we fight to keep Japan from gobbling them up?

With this problem is joined the problem of our war fleet. It is now guarding the Pacific. That leaves our Atlantic front exposed, for it is a one-ocean fleet, little stronger than Japan's. If Japan seriously weakened our fleet, we might find ourselves at Hitler's mercy in the Atlantic.

So this is a time of decision. Shall we pull out of the Far East, and make Hawaii our western front, at least until we get our new fleet built and have a two-ocean navy?

TIT FOR TAT

IT is remarkable how often a sort of "poetic justice" seems to be worked out, in this war. The Germans deliberately subject the French, for instance, to humiliations that were visited upon the Germans by their conquerors after the last war. Both in form and substance, with the situation now reversed, the French are paid in full, and more, for deeds and terms which the Germans have always resented.

Now in turn the French will resent these things as the Germans did last time, and will look forward to turning the tables again when their time comes.

There is no end to this sort of thing. It reaches far back into past history and may reach far into the future. No other form of pride is so enduring, and has so long a memory, as national pride.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

HOOVER, CASTLE ANNOYED

PHILADELPHIA—There are two men at this convention to whom the appointment of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War is gall and wormwood. They are Herbert Hoover, for whom Stimson served as Secretary of State; and William R. Castle, Jr., who served Stimson as Under-Secretary of State.

Nothing Franklin Roosevelt could have done could have nettled Hoover and Castle more than Stimson's appointment.

When all three were in the Hoover Administration, they fought continually, and the basis of their fight illustrated the basic cleavage inside the Republican Party today. Hoover and Castle were deathly afraid of playing too strong a hand in Europe and Asia. Stimson leaned in the opposite direction.

When Japan invaded Manchuria, Stimson got Hoover's consent to sending the late Prentiss Gilbert to attend the Council of the League of Nations and help adopt a united peace program blocking Japan. But when several members of the Republican National Committee objected, Hoover ordered Gilbert out of the Council meetings. It took a personal phone call from Viscount Reading finally to reverse Hoover's position and permit Gilbert to stay.

Again in 1931 when Hoover proposed a Moratorium on Germany's war debt, he issued what was called the "Hoover plan". But his Secretary of State, then in London, and knowing how the French disliked Hoover, flatly denied there was any such thing as a Hoover plan. Later both men found themselves on opposite shores of the Atlantic, one insisting there was no Hoover plan, the other that he had written it.

DOGGED STIMSON

Most disastrous friction between Hoover and Stimson came during the London Naval Conference of 1930, when Stimson saw that nothing save a consultative pact would save the conference. This pact pledged the United States to consult with Europe in case of war.

But the morning after Secretary Stimson, in London, had announced his determination to negotiate such a pact, his chief in the White House issued this formal statement:

"No security or consultative pact has been considered at any time during the course of the London Conference."

Of course, this left Secretary Stimson very much out on the limb. But it is significant that when it came to a showdown between Hoover and his Secretary of State, his Secretary of State usually won.

DIET AND HEALTH

Malnutrition Stems From Many Causes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● IN CONNECTION with our diets for underweight, it would help to an understanding if we would examine the nature of chronic malnutrition and its causes.

Aside from any real disease process which causes malnutrition and which we discussed recently, the factors which condition nutrition are physical environment, psychological environment, food, individual requirements, appetite and utilization of food. The physical environment, which depends upon the economic state, the geography, the amount of fresh air, housing conditions, exercise and adequate rest periods, needs no comment.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Food Comes First

Nor does the psychological environment. We all know people who worry themselves thin. Under individual requirements we also know people who need more sleep, more exercise, or more laughter than their neighbors.

We are principally interested in this study in the question of food. Most important in this are the factors which have to do with appetite. Some people are chronically indifferent to food or even have chronic slight nausea. Sore mouth, infected mouth, imperfections and absence of teeth, all have important bearings on the weight of the individual. I told a story not long ago of a professional friend of mine who had an imperfect denture put in which took away his appetite and taste for food so that he lost thirty or forty pounds.

Adverse elements affecting the intake of food are ignorance which exists among the rich and poor alike; in fact, is probably commoner among the rich because they are more likely to be able to indulge in food fads, such as separating the carbohydrates from the proteins and other things that make people thin. A great many people get thin because they follow too long, diets prescribed by physicians for actual disease processes, such as ulcer of the stomach, high blood pressure and allergic states.

Depends on Vitamins

Appetite to a considerable extent depends upon the proper amount of vitamins in the food, and so does absorption. Physical activity has a great deal to do with the proper utilization of food. By increasing energy expenditure, the caloric requirements of the food are raised by several hundred or thousand calories. If this is not met, malnutrition will result. Here is another vacation diet for the underweight:

Breakfast: Baked apple; liver and bacon; 2 eggs; 2 slices toast and butter; coffee with cream and sugar.

Mid-morning: Glass milk, ½ cream.

Lunch: Cream soup; croutons; smoked sturgeon; bread with butter; fresh peas; salad; fresh berries with cream and sugar.

Mid-afternoon: Orange juice.

Dinner: Tomato juice cocktail; beefsteak with mushrooms; peppers stuffed with cheese; bread and butter; Romaine anchovy salad; cream puff; coffee with cream.

Evening: Eggnog.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. L.—"Is sweating at night in children always due to late afternoon fever?"

Answer—Late afternoon fever means infection, and sweating in children is often due to rickets. In fact, in the spring, it is more often due to rickets than it is to fever.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

"Lordy, Mr. Merrifield, I fell in love with her myself the moment I entered this room!"

"AND SO I'm checking out of it, Mr. Merrifield," Bill Bailey was saying, deep emotion in his voice. "I discovered weeks ago that I couldn't go on, trying to help somebody else make love to Gayle. Lordy, Mr. Merrifield, I fell in love with her myself the moment I first entered this room!"

The old gentleman had sat down, gaping at the youths, confused. Bill stood near his desk with one arm around Gayle, and Jeremy was close by. Gayle leaned forward and spoke then, almost pleading.

"I—we—entered that arrangement impusively, Mr. Merrifield!" She tucked in her lower lip a moment to control herself "We did. Bill has loved me all along—I knew it! I knew that I loved him. But we—we needed jobs. And we wanted to help Jeremy, honestly we did. We came to like him more and more, and all the while our friendship mixed up our plans and—"

"I say—see here—!" Jeremy tried to get in, but Bill took the floor again.

"I thought we'd work for a while and try to make the plays show a profit, Mr. Merrifield, so that you wouldn't have to lose a dime of money on us, then—"

Jeremy forced in then. "See here, I know about the $10,000 grandfather offered you! I overheard him telling his friends tonight. At first I was angry, but I realized that he did it to help me. And I—I needed—needed what you brought to me, Bill, you and Gayle. You have—well—" An embarrassment halted him now.

"—then we would step out of the picture entirely, Mr. Merrifield," Bill resumed his own speech. "We would have done that after tonight. I mean, I had made up my mind to ask Gayle to leave with me, to—to marry me. And—"

"Oh, Bill!"

"—and I do not want the money, not a cent of it, sir! We haven't earned it, anyway. I suppose I have been unfair to Gayle, but I couldn't know in advance about falling in love myself. I can't control love. Nobody can! Love and happiness can't be ordered C. O. D. like a—like a car of mining machinery, Mr. Merrifield!"

Gayle was nodding, nodding emphatic agreement with her Bill, now.

The old gentleman had inhaled slowly, prodigiously. He leaned back in his comfortable chair and studied them a long moment, quietly, calming them by his very manner.

Jeremy spoke next, and he had visibly relaxed, too.

"Grandfather offered you $10,000 each," he said very slowly, gazing at the fire. "That was to—to help—me." His voice was a bare murmur now. "I do not know how you feel now, grandfather, about that. I—well, I proposed to Gayle because I knew you wanted me to. Knew you had—planned it. Planned happiness. Ordered it. Connived for it, for us all!"

He had to pause then from sheer emotion.

"As for the $10,000," he finally resumed, "why, I—I have a great deal of money myself. And grandfather—their pay has been—earned!"

He ended in a dramatic whisper. And he might have said more, or surely all of them would have talked longer, but for a soft, discreet tapping at the study door. All their eyes turned toward it involuntarily and the old man spoke.

"Come."

The door opened ever so gently and Lola Montesa's lovely face showed. It had, however, a distinct look of worry.

"Oh!" she exclaimed softly. "I have coom, looking. Thee play—we could not find you, Beel. And Gayle and Jeremee. Iss anytheeng—wrong?"

She was a shy, exquisitely beautiful person in a crimson evening gown. Across the square cut-neck of it were white gardenias in a dainty row—gift from Mr. Merrifield himself. (His foolish order to spend $100 for flowers on each of the girls had, of course, been scaled down by the efficient Mr. Weems.)

She looked so pretty there, so extremely colorful and dainty in the soft light from the desk lamp, and from the flickering fire, that the others just stood admiring her for a long moment. During the interval, she, too, was appraising them, studying their faces. She settled on Jeremy.

"Somebody hass make you onhappee, Jeremee! I weel not have that!"

Quick fire had shone in Lola's eyes. A sudden flash of determination or of anger, a sudden pronouncement that she would spring to Jeremy's defense. Her manner and tone connoted far more than her words.

"No! No, Lola," Jeremy said, ever so gently. "No, but I almost made some people unhappy, myself. I'm glad you came. You—you look so beautiful, Lola! You do!"

She smiled her thanks. "You haff say that before, Jeremee! When I wass not in evening dress. I theenk it is so, maybee, that you like me!"

The fire in her eyes was gone. The innate gentility of her was evident again, and the sheer feminine sweetness which not even shyness could din. Her very presence had, somehow, served to relax the others. Her fortunate interruption had served exactly right to break the tension of these four, and her soft musical voice, lacking nothing of strength therefor, had woven a contrasting mood.

Gayle sighed—exhaling in sudden release and relief. Bill still held one arm around her and his fingers clutched at her side now, quite unconsciously drawing her closer to him. He was a very serious-faced young man.

"Whatever is done, is done," Gayle said, soberly. "There is love here, Mr. Merrifield. Happiness. Happiness more than you can ever know, I believe, even though it didn't come exactly as you planned. But we have another obligation, too, and it is urgent. Jeremy, Lola, and Bill, darling—come on!"

She led them toward the door, thence down onto the lawn toward the waiting people. She glanced at her wrist watch. Events had moved swiftly, for it was yet only a quarter of nine.

"I must tell you something else, Bill," Gayle said, "and all of you. Tempe Hyde will not be in the play."

Bill looked closely at her. "You—you know? Already?"

She nodded. "Did you see Mrs. Holmquist also?"

"Yes, Gayle. She hoped you wouldn't have to be disturbed tonight. I—well, the truth is, I caught Tempe myself. Planted a borrowed diamond pin—apparently it was left carelessly on a girl's wrap—and waited in a closet for her. There's no time to talk details now, but I wanted Jeremy to know, and I wanted all of you to hear me apologize to Lola. I am truly sorry, Lola. If it hadn't been for your diary—forgive me, for snooping there, too!"

"Iss nothing, Beel. Iss all right. And Beel—tonight I weel not haff to do what I do that other party night. I write about that in my diary; is what you read."

"Yes?" They all looked curiously at the dark girl.

"Uh huh. I wass stranger, I have no boy friends, but you say we must invite escort for that partee. So Beel—I wass bold. I hired a boy to be my escort that night, to keep my job! Iss what I put in my diary. Tonight—no! I do not hire thee escort. I do not have to! Four days ago comes a boy and ask me to be hiss date tonight for dancing, after thee play—did you not, my Jeremee?"

The Chronicle-Post next morning decided that 1,700 people at a charity drama and a ball at The Oaks was worth first-page attention, and so gave it position beside the current murder, the national political news and the European war. But in his private and wholly uninhibited column, Mr. Cholly Farrington revealed his gleanings in his own way.

"Relax, everybody. 'The Wit to Woo' is over," wrote he. "I didn't scalp my seat after all. I used it. All of Us Who Are Anybody were there. Some of Us were still there when I had to hasten away for press time. For all I know, they're still dancing, now that it's another dawn.

"I saw the estimable Mr. Merrifield beaming brightly at midnight. Grand old soul. When I'm aged 78, I hope I'm half as happy as he.

"I tried after the play to find that beauteous Gayle person—she and the Montesa girl quite stole the show, both of them doing their part with remarkable feeling and yet with just the correct restraint. I am, personally, in love with both of them, but the inference from sundry observations is that I am away down the waiting line. I can't believe that Miss Gayle and Mr. Bill Bailey were merely acting, in their excellent love scenes. And neither of them was present for the after party. I don't know what I think I know, but I suspect what I suspect.

"I shall investigate this matter, friend public, and report to you at the earliest opportunity. Stand by."

The End

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up once more to the patter of rain. Already folk are beginning to ask if the booming of big guns in Europe has anything to do with the precipitation. Back in World War days, the first one when the United States "saved" democracy, many folk thought the guns brought on rain, but scientists said they didn't. Whatever the cause, we have too much rain now and farmers are fretting. Also city folk.

Noted with interest, and stopped to applaud, the face lifting operation in the ville's most beautiful building, the Elks Club. The antlered herd is proud of that structure, and it should be. Visited Ward Robinson's dairy plant and was confused by the amount of machinery required to prepare a bottle of milk for delivery at my door each morning. Ward is making a great improvement with the work now only about half done.

Wonder whether the Thomas boys west of the ville plan on supplying all the nation's turkeys this fall? About 5,000 of the birds on their farms. And that is a lot of turkeys. Visited the Third monerie and inspected the check photographing machine that provides a permanent record of all checks that go through the institution. Asked whether it is fast enough to take pictures of bouncing checks and was informed that it is. Think I'll take one over for a photo. It has been bouncing so fast and hard ever since I got it that I really have not had a good look at it.

Stop at the corner of Pinckney and Court Streets and look north. You will see one of the most beautiful streets in the land. Those trees make it so. Saw a woman's anger mount to the boiling point at Main and Court Streets because she had to slow down her auto for a pedestrian. She turned the corner and almost struck a man. I do believe that very, very few motorists know that pedestrians have the right of way, and particularly when an auto is turning corners. At traffic lights the car, of course, has the go-ahead sign on the green, but the light at the same time is with the pedestrian. Bear that in mind before you hit someone and a court of law assesses big damages against you.

Talk of the war dies down as public attention centers on the Republican convention. Almost as great a fight there as in Europe and the losers will mourn almost as much. Only a day or two more and the refugees will be moving out of Philadelphia. Glad I am not there, for I can get more than my fill of politics right here at home. And then, too, the sight of party hangers-on always sickens me. Those chaps are such optimists and generally much more interested in personal than public benefit although they like to pretend otherwise.

"BY GUM," it's a pretty small charge for a cash loan when you need it!"

PACIFIC TROUBLE

JAPAN at last comes into the open and shows her hand. She has a definite plan for extending her empire. She will probably start by taking over French Indo-China, which is not only a rich and desirable country in itself but controls the route by which China has been getting war supplies to resist Japan.

With that colony would probably go Siam and the Malay Peninsula, which controls the important Strait of Malacca and the route from the Pacific to India. Below and around that region are the big, populous and enormously rich Dutch East Indies. To the east are the South China Sea and our Philippines.

After biting off Indo-China and those Dutch Indies, Japan would be ready to gobble up the Philippines. Then she would have an empire, even without China, and would be truly one of the world's great Fascist powers. China might fall to her without much effort.

We Americans have to decide rather quickly whether we are willing to have Japan follow such a program and timetable. We don't want to see French China and the Dutch Indies absorbed in that fashion, but do we want to fight for them? We don't want Japan in the Philippines, but, after deciding to let them go in 1946, will we fight to keep Japan from gobbling them up?

With this problem is joined the problem of our war fleet. It is now guarding the Pacific. That leaves our Atlantic front exposed, for it is a one-ocean fleet, little stronger than Japan's. If Japan seriously weakened our fleet, we might find ourselves at Hitler's mercy in the Atlantic.

So this is a time of decision. Shall we pull out of the Far East, and make Hawaii our western front, at least until we get our new fleet built and have a two-ocean navy?

TIT FOR TAT

IT is remarkable how often a sort of "poetic justice" seems to be worked out, in this war. The Germans deliberately subject the French, for instance, to humiliations that were visited upon the Germans by their conquerors after the last war. Both in form and substance, with the situation now reversed, the French are paid in full, and more, for deeds and terms which the Germans have always resented.

Now in turn the French will resent these things as the Germans did last time, and will look forward to turning the tables again when their time comes.

There is no end to this sort of thing. It reaches far back into past history and may reach far into the future. No other form of pride is so enduring, and has so long a memory, as national pride.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

HOOVER, CASTLE ANNOYED

PHILADELPHIA—There are two men at this convention to whom the appointment of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War is gall and wormwood. They are Herbert Hoover, for whom Stimson served as Secretary of State; and William R. Castle, Jr., who served Stimson as Under-Secretary of State.

Nothing Franklin Roosevelt could have done could have nettled Hoover and Castle more than Stimson's appointment.

When all three were in the Hoover Administration, they fought continually, and the basis of their fight illustrated the basic cleavage inside the Republican Party today. Hoover and Castle were deathly afraid of playing too strong a hand in Europe and Asia. Stimson leaned in the opposite direction.

When Japan invaded Manchuria, Stimson got Hoover's consent to sending the late Prentiss Gilbert to attend the Council of the League of Nations and help adopt a united peace program blocking Japan. But when several members of the Republican National Committee objected, Hoover ordered Gilbert out of the Council meetings. It took a personal phone call from Viscount Reading finally to reverse Hoover's position and permit Gilbert to stay.

Again in 1931 when Hoover proposed a Moratorium on Germany's war debt, he issued what was called the "Hoover plan". But his Secretary of State, then in London, and knowing how the French disliked Hoover, flatly denied there was any such thing as a Hoover plan. Later both men found themselves on opposite shores of the Atlantic, one insisting there was no Hoover plan, the other that he had written it.

DOGGED STIMSON

Most disastrous friction between Hoover and Stimson came during the London Naval Conference of 1930, when Stimson saw that nothing save a consultative pact would save the conference. This pact pledged the United States to consult with Europe in case of war.

But the morning after Secretary Stimson, in London, had announced his determination to negotiate such a pact, his chief in the White House issued this formal statement:

"No security or consultative pact has been considered at any time during the course of the London Conference."

Of course, this left Secretary Stimson very much out on the limb. But it is significant that when it came to a showdown between Hoover and his Secretary of State, his Secretary of State usually won.

Stimson has a dogged persistence and a will of iron which made him the most potent figure in the Hoover Cabinet. And in the Roosevelt Cabinet both the generals and FDR himself will have a hard time swaying Stimson—if he doesn't want to be swayed.

Words of Wisdom

The summary of good breeding may be reduced to this rule: "Behave to all others as you would they should behave to you." —Fielding.

Hints on Etiquette

You may be a very good person morally, but if you do not have good manners your virtues may make no impression at all.

Today's Horoscope

Their own industry and enterprise will bring success in the next year to those whose birthdays are today. They should push their affairs to the utmost. Born today a child will be ambitious, enterprising, courageous, quick-witted, and ever ready for decisive action. Success in naval or military pursuits is predicted.

Up once more to the patter of rain. Already folk are beginning to ask if the booming of big guns in Europe has anything to do with the precipitation. Back in World War days, the first one when the United States "saved" democracy, many folk thought the guns brought on rain, but scientists said they didn't. Whatever the cause, we have too much rain now and farmers are fretting. Also city folk.

Noted with interest, and stopped to applaud, the face lifting operation in the ville's most beautiful building, the Elks Club. The antlered herd is proud of that structure, and it should be. Visited Ward Robinson's dairy plant and was confused by the amount of machinery required to prepare a bottle of milk for delivery at my door each morning. Ward is making a great improvement with the work now only about half done.

Wonder whether the Thomas boys west of the ville plan on supplying all the nation's turkeys this fall? About 5,000 of the birds on their farms. And that is a lot of turkeys. Visited the Third monerie and inspected the check photographing machine that provides a permanent record of all checks that go through the institution. Asked whether it is fast enough to take pictures of bouncing checks and was informed that it is. Think I'll take one over for a photo. It has been bouncing so fast and hard ever since I got it that I really have not had a good look at it.

Stop at the corner of Pinckney and Court Streets and look north. You will see one of the most beautiful streets in the land. Those trees make it so. Saw a woman's anger mount to the boiling point at Main and Court Streets because she had to slow down her auto for a pedestrian. She turned the corner and almost struck a man. I do believe that very, very few motorists know that pedestrians have the right of way, and particularly when an auto is turning corners. At traffic lights the car, of course, has the go-ahead sign on the green, but the light at the same time is with the pedestrian. Bear that in mind before you hit someone and a court of law assesses big damages against you.

Talk of the war dies down as public attention centers on the Republican convention. Almost as great a fight there as in Europe and the losers will mourn almost as much. Only a day or two more and the refugees will be moving out of Philadelphia. Glad I am not there, for I can get more than my fill of politics right here at home. And then, too, the sight of party hangers-on always sickens me. Those chaps are such optimists and generally much more interested in personal than public benefit although they like to pretend otherwise.

Happiness, C. O. D.

by OREN ARNOLD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

"Lordy, Mr. Merrifield, I fell in love with her myself the moment I entered this room!"

"AND SO I'm checking out of it, Mr. Merrifield," Bill Bailey was saying, deep emotion in his voice. "I discovered weeks ago that I couldn't go on, trying to help somebody else make love to Gayle. Lordy, Mr. Merrifield, I fell in love with her myself the moment I first entered this room!"

The old gentleman had sat down, gaping at the youths, confused. Bill stood near his desk with one arm around Gayle, and Jeremy was close by. Gayle leaned forward and spoke then, almost pleading.

"I—we—entered that arrangement impusively, Mr. Merrifield!" She tucked in her lower lip a moment to control herself "We did. Bill has loved me all along—I knew it! I knew that I loved him. But we—we needed jobs. And we wanted to help Jeremy, honestly we did. We came to like him more and more, and all the while our friendship mixed up our plans and—"

"I say—see here—!" Jeremy tried to get in, but Bill took the floor again.

"I thought we'd work for a while and try to make the plays show a profit, Mr. Merrifield, so that you wouldn't have to lose a dime of money on us, then—"

Jeremy forced in then. "See here, I know about the $10,000 grandfather offered you! I overheard him telling his friends tonight. At first I was angry, but I realized that he did it to help me. And I—I needed—needed what you brought to me, Bill, you and Gayle. You have—well—" An embarrassment halted him now.

"—then we would step out of the picture entirely, Mr. Merrifield," Bill resumed his own speech. "We would have done that after tonight. I mean, I had made up my mind to ask Gayle to leave with me, to—to marry me. And—"

"Oh, Bill!"

"—and I do not want the money, not a cent of it, sir! We haven't earned it, anyway. I suppose I have been unfair to Gayle, but I couldn't know in advance about falling in love myself. I can't control love. Nobody can! Love and happiness can't be ordered C. O. D. like a—like a car of mining machinery, Mr. Merrifield!"

Gayle was nodding, nodding emphatic agreement with her Bill, now.

The old gentleman had inhaled slowly, prodigiously. He leaned back in his comfortable chair and studied them a long moment, quietly, calming them by his very manner.

Jeremy spoke next, and he had visibly relaxed, too.

"Grandfather offered you $10,000 each," he said very slowly, gazing at the fire. "That was to—to help—me." His voice was a bare murmur now. "I do not know how you feel now, grandfather, about that. I—well, I proposed to Gayle because I knew you wanted me to. Knew you had—planned it. Planned happiness. Ordered it. Connived for it, for us all!"

He had to pause then from sheer emotion.

"As for the $10,000," he finally resumed, "why, I—I have a great deal of money myself. And grandfather—their pay has been—earned!"

He ended in a dramatic whisper. And he might have said more, or surely all of them would have talked longer, but for a soft, discreet tapping at the study door. All their eyes turned toward it involuntarily and the old man spoke.

"Come."

The door opened ever so gently and Lola Montesa's lovely face showed. It had, however, a distinct look of worry.

"Oh!" she exclaimed softly. "I have coom, looking. Thee play—we could not find you, Beel. And Gayle and Jeremee. Iss anytheeng—wrong?"

She was a shy, exquisitely beautiful person in a crimson evening gown. Across the square cut-neck of it were white gardenias in a dainty row—gift from Mr. Merrifield himself. (His foolish order to spend $100 for flowers on each of the girls had, of course, been scaled down by the efficient Mr. Weems.)

She looked so pretty there, so extremely colorful and dainty in the soft light from the desk lamp, and from the flickering fire, that the others just stood admiring her for a long moment. During the interval, she, too, was appraising them, studying their faces. She settled on Jeremy.

"Somebody hass make you onhappee, Jeremee! I weel not have that!"

Quick fire had shone in Lola's eyes. A sudden flash of determination or of anger, a sudden pronouncement that she would spring to Jeremy's defense. Her manner and tone connoted far more than her words.

"No! No, Lola," Jeremy said, ever so gently. "No, but I almost made some people unhappy, myself. I'm glad you came. You—you look so beautiful, Lola! You do!"

She smiled her thanks. "You haff say that before, Jeremee! When I wass not in evening dress. I theenk it is so, maybee, that you like me!"

The fire in her eyes was gone. The innate gentility of her was evident again, and the sheer feminine sweetness which not even shyness could din. Her very presence had, somehow, served to relax the others. Her fortunate interruption had served exactly right to break the tension of these four, and her soft musical voice, lacking nothing of strength therefor, had woven a contrasting mood.

Gayle sighed—exhaling in sudden release and relief. Bill still held one arm around her and his fingers clutched at her side now, quite unconsciously drawing her closer to him. He was a very serious-faced young man.

"Whatever is done, is done," Gayle said, soberly. "There is love here, Mr. Merrifield. Happiness. Happiness more than you can ever know, I believe, even though it didn't come exactly as you planned. But we have another obligation, too, and it is urgent. Jeremy, Lola, and Bill, darling—come on!"

She led them toward the door, thence down onto the lawn toward the waiting people. She glanced at her wrist watch. Events had moved swiftly, for it was yet only a quarter of nine.

"I must tell you something else, Bill," Gayle said, "and all of you. Tempe Hyde will not be in the play."

Bill looked closely at her. "You—you know? Already?"

She nodded. "Did you see Mrs. Holmquist also?"

"Yes, Gayle. She hoped you wouldn't have to be disturbed tonight. I—well, the truth is, I caught Tempe myself. Planted a borrowed diamond pin—apparently it was left carelessly on a girl's wrap—and waited in a closet for her. There's no time to talk details now, but I wanted Jeremy to know, and I wanted all of you to hear me apologize to Lola. I am truly sorry, Lola. If it hadn't been for your diary—forgive me, for snooping there, too!"

"Iss nothing, Beel. Iss all right. And Beel—tonight I weel not haff to do what I do that other party night. I write about that in my diary; is what you read."

"Yes?" They all looked curiously at the dark girl.

"Uh huh. I wass stranger, I have no boy friends, but you say we must invite escort for that partee. So Beel—I wass bold. I hired a boy to be my escort that night, to keep my job! Iss what I put in my diary. Tonight—no! I do not hire thee escort. I do not have to! Four days ago comes a boy and ask me to be hiss date tonight for dancing, after thee play—did you not, my Jeremee?"

The Chronicle-Post next morning decided that 1,700 people at a charity drama and a ball at The Oaks was worth first-page attention, and so gave it position beside the current murder, the national political news and the European war. But in his private and wholly uninhibited column, Mr. Cholly Farrington revealed his gleanings in his own way.

"Relax, everybody. 'The Wit to Woo' is over," wrote he. "I didn't scalp my seat after all. I used it. All of Us Who Are Anybody were there. Some of Us were still there when I had to hasten away for press time. For all I know, they're still dancing, now that it's another dawn.

"I saw the estimable Mr. Merrifield beaming brightly at midnight. Grand old soul. When I'm aged 78, I hope I'm half as happy as he.

"I tried after the play to find that beauteous Gayle person—she and the Montesa girl quite stole the show, both of them doing their part with remarkable feeling and yet with just the correct restraint. I am, personally, in love with both of them, but the inference from sundry observations is that I am away down the waiting line. I can't believe that Miss Gayle and Mr. Bill Bailey were merely acting, in their excellent love scenes. And neither of them was present for the after party. I don't know what I think I know, but I suspect what I suspect.

"I shall investigate this matter, friend public, and report to you at the earliest opportunity. Stand by."

Today's Fashion

DAZZLING white rayon sharkskin is a perennial pet when it comes to Summer grooming. Cool because it won't stick, practical because it tubs without yellowing and irons easily, it's the top for setting off tanned complexions too.

Here it is used for a dirndl skirt with jumper top, over a highly plaided long sleeved skirt of bright rayon and cotton weave. Big pockets takes care of cigs, vanity, keys and what not.

Today's Menu

WANT TO serve something less hearty than meat this warm weather, or any time this summer? Try a souffle. Mushrooms give some food value when taking the place of meat or fish.

TODAY'S MENU

Mushroom Souffle Boiled Rice
Mixed Vegetable Salad with 3-Minute Mayonnaise
Milk Sherbet Cookies
Iced Tea or Coffee

Mushroom Souffle

3 tbsp. butter
½ lb. mushrooms, finely chopped
2 tbsp. minced onion
2 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup milk
2 tbsp. minced parsley
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 egg yolks well beaten
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter add mushrooms and onions and cook over low heat for 5 minutes Melt remaining butter in small saucepan, stir in flour and seasoning, and when smooth, add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until it thickens and boils. Remove from fire, fold in mushrooms, parsley and lemon juice and and then fold in the well-beaten egg yolks; fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased baking dish and bake in 400 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. This will serve six.

Milk Sherbet

1 qt. milk
1 tsp. lemon extract
1½ cups sugar
Juice 2 large lemons

Mix milk, sugar and lemon extract together and put into freezer. Pack with ice and salt, and turn crank. When it begins to freeze, add juice of lemons and finish freezing.

Lemon Cream Sherbet

2 cups milk
1 cup cream, whipped
1½ cups sugar
½ cup lemon juice
Grated rind 1 lemon

Wash lemons and grate the rind of one, squeeze juice, then combine with sugar and let stand in refrigerator for one hour. Stir slowly into milk. Whip cream to the consistency of mayonnaise, fold in milk and lemon mixture and turn into freezer and freeze, using 6 or 8 parts of ice to 1 of salt.

3-Minute Mayonnaise

1 whole egg
3 tbsp lemon juice or vinegar
½ tsp. dry mustard
1½ tsps. sugar
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. paprika
1½ cups salad oil

Put egg, seasonings, 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, ¼ cup salad oil in bowl and beat. Add remaining oil ¼ cup at a time, beating vigorously, adding remaining lemon juice or vinegar a little at a time.

GOING TO a picnic tomorrow? Make this veal loaf and serve hot today, then make sandwiches, or take sliced loaf to the affair tomorrow and serve with a salad and cake for dessert.

Today's Menu

Veal Loaf Baked Potatoes
Scalloped Onions Tomato Salad
Dolly Varden Cake
Tea or Coffee

Veal Loaf

3½ lbs. veal, chopped fine
¼ lb. salt pork, ground with veal
2 eggs, well beaten
1½ tsps. salt
½ green pepper, chopped
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup strained tomato juice or canned tomato soup
1 small onion, chopped
½ cup bread or cracker crumbs

Beat eggs, mix with chopped meat, salt, pepper, green pepper, onion and crumbs, dampen with tomato juice and bake in loaf pan at 350 F. for 2 hours.

Scalloped Onions

Peel and slice as many onions as you need. Butter casserole or baking dish, slice onions into it, sprinkle liberally with salt and pepper and pour 1 cup or more of scalded milk into which 1 tablespoon butter has been melted, over all. Top with crumbs and make until onions are tender and brown — approximately ½ hour.

PICNICS ARE something to bear in mind these lovely days when you plan dinner. Some one may call up and say, "How about taking our dinners and eating them out in the country?" This ham and rice dish can be cooked at home, the container wrapped in newspaper, carried to the picnic grounds and served hot with a thermos of coffee, sandwiches, and so on, all ready to be eaten.

TODAY'S MENU

Ham and Rice Tomato Salad
Brown Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Spice Cakes Coffee

Ham and Rice

1 pound smoked ham
1 small onion
2 bay leaves
1 tsp. parsley
1½ tbsp butter
2 cups water
¾ cup rice
½ tsp. chili powder
Salt and pepper

Cut ham in small pieces. Mince onion and parsley and cook in butter until light brown. Add chili powder, bay leaves and ham and cook five minutes. Add water and when it boils add rice, carefully washed. Season to taste and boil until rice is tender, adding more water if necessary. Leftover ham, boiled or baked, can also be used.

Spice Cake

1 cup sugar
½ cup lard
1 scant cup hot water
½ cup molasses
2 eggs
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
2 tsp. soda.
2½ cups flour
½ asp. salt

cream lard with sugar, add molasses, then beaten eggs. Sift flour with soda, cinnamon, cloves, and salt, and add to first mixture alternately with hot water. This mixture will be rather thin, but do not add more flour, or you will spoil it.

Tomato Salad

Tomatoes Radishes
Celery Green onion

Scoop centers out of enough tomatoes for the number of persons to be served. You can peel the tomatoes or not, as you choose. Cut other ingredients fine and mix with your favorite salad dressing and ⅛ teaspoon celery salt. Fill tomato shells with mixture and wrap each tomato separately in waxed paper, if you are taking them on a picnic: You can serve as is, or with extra salad dressing.

SWISS STEAK is a good all year-round meat dish. It is as popular in warm as in cool weather. Cooked with early summer vegetables it makes an excellent main dish. Try the sour cream pudding.

Today's Menu

Fruit Juice
or
Fresh Fruit Cocktail
Swiss Steak Boiled New Potatoes
Banana Salad
Sour Cream Pudding
Coffee

Swiss Steak

Top cut Round steak
½ green pepper
4 green onions
2 stalks celery
¾ cup canned tomato soup
Flour

Wipe steak with damp cloth, rub with salt and pepper and sprinkle with ¼ cup flour, pounding it in with a blunt instrument or the edge of a plate. Treat both sides alike, then melt 2 tablespoons bacon fat in heavy skillet and brown the steak all over with a rather low fire. While steak browns, prepare vegetables, cut pepper in thin slices, ditto onions, dice celery. When steak is well browned, pile vegetables on top, add tomato soup and cook over low heat, covered, until meat is tender, which will take about 2 hours. Serve with vegetables on top of meat. Look at meat rather frequently and add a little hot water if it is inclined to burn.

South Cream Pudding

3 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup bran
1 cup milk
2 cups flour
3 teasps. baking powder
½ teasp. salt
1 teasp. vanilla
2 cups light brown sugar
2 cups thick sour cream

Blend shortening and sugar, add egg and beat well. Soak bran in milk. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add to creamed mixture alternately with bran and milk; add flavoring. Pour into deep baking pan and spread evenly. Sprinkle brown sugar overtop and pour on cream. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) about 45 minutes. Serve hot in upside-down squares.

Chili Con Carne with Soybeans
Buttered Beets or Beet Greens
Cabbage Salad Strawberry Mousse
Tea or Coffee

STRAWBERRY Mousse — One quart strawberries, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tall can evaporated milk, or one and two-thirds cups cream. Select sound, well-rippened berries, wash, hull, drain and mash. Press quickly through a coarse sieve or force through potato ricer. There will be from one and one-half to two cups strawberry pulp and juice. If berries are sour, add one-fourth cup more sugar. Add sugar to strawberry pulp and let stand in refrigerator twenty minutes to chill and to dissolve sugar. Chill milk or cream thoroughly and whip until very stiff. Cut and fold strawberry mixture lightly and thoroughly into milk. Turn into cold freezing pan in automatic refrigerator. This amount serves twelve.

Today's Fashion

DAZZLING white rayon sharkskin is a perennial pet when it comes to Summer grooming. Cool because it won't stick, practical because it tubs without yellowing and irons easily, it's the top for setting off tanned complexions too.

Here it is used for a dirndl skirt with jumper top, over a highly plaided long sleeved skirt of bright rayon and cotton weave. Big pockets takes care of cigs, vanity, keys and what not.

Today's Menu

WANT TO serve something less hearty than meat this warm weather, or any time this summer? Try a souffle. Mushrooms give some food value when taking the place of meat or fish.

TODAY'S MENU

Mushroom Souffle Boiled Rice
Mixed Vegetable Salad with 3-Minute Mayonnaise
Milk Sherbet Cookies
Iced Tea or Coffee

Mushroom Souffle

3 tbsp. butter	½ cup milk
½ lb. mushrooms, finely chopped	2 tbsp. minced parsley
2 tbsp. minced onion	1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. flour	2 egg yolks well beaten
½ tsp. salt	3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
¼ tsp. pepper

Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter add mushrooms and onions and cook over low heat for 5 minutes Melt remaining butter in small saucepan, stir in flour and seasoning, and when smooth, add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until it thickens and boils. Remove from fire, fold in mushrooms, parsley and lemon juice and and then fold in the well-beaten egg yolks; fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into greased baking dish and bake in 400 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. This will serve six.

Milk Sherbet

1 qt. milk	1½ cups sugar
1 tsp. lemon extract	Juice 2 large lemons

Mix milk, sugar and lemon extract together and put into freezer. Pack with ice and salt, and turn crank. When it begins to freeze, add juice of lemons and finish freezing.

Lemon Cream Sherbet

2 cups milk	½ cup lemon juice
1 cup cream, whipped	Grated rind
1½ cups sugar	1 lemon

Wash lemons and grate the rind of one, squeeze juice, then combine with sugar and let stand in refrigerator for one hour. Stir slowly into milk. Whip cream to the consistency of mayonnaise, fold in milk and lemon mixture and turn into freezer and freeze, using 6 or 8 parts of ice to 1 of salt.

3-Minute Mayonnaise

1 whole egg	1½ tsps. sugar
3 tbsp lemon juice or vinegar	½ tsp. salt
	⅛ tsp. paprika
½ tsp. dry mustard	1½ cups salad oil

Put egg, seasonings, 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar, ¼ cup salad oil in bowl and beat. Add remaining oil ¼ cup at a time, beating vigorously, adding remaining lemon juice or vinegar a little at a time.

GOING TO a picnic tomorrow? Make this veal loaf and serve hot today, then make sandwiches, or take sliced loaf to the affair tomorrow and serve with a salad and cake for dessert.

Today's Menu

Veal Loaf Baked Potatoes
Scalloped Onions Tomato Salad
Dolly Varden Cake
Tea or Coffee

Veal Loaf

3½ lbs. veal, chopped fine	⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ lb. salt pork, ground with veal	1 cup strained tomato juice or canned tomato soup
2 eggs, well beaten	1 small onion, chopped
1½ tsps. salt	½ cup bread or cracker crumbs
½ green pepper, chopped

Beat eggs, mix with chopped meat, salt, pepper, green pepper, onion and crumbs, dampen with tomato juice and bake in loaf pan at 350 F. for 2 hours.

Scalloped Onions

Peel and slice as many onions as you need. Butter casserole or baking dish, slice onions into it, sprinkle liberally with salt and pepper and pour 1 cup or more of scalded milk into which 1 tablespoon butter has been melted, over all. Top with crumbs and make until onions are tender and brown — approximately ½ hour.

PICNICS ARE something to bear in mind these lovely days when you plan dinner. Some one may call up and say, "How about taking our dinners and eating them out in the country?" This ham and rice dish can be cooked at home, the container wrapped in newspaper, carried to the picnic grounds and served hot with a thermos of coffee, sandwiches, and so on, all ready to be eaten.

TODAY'S MENU

Ham and Rice Tomato Salad
Brown Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Spice Cakes Coffee

Ham and Rice

1 pound smoked ham	2 cups water
1 small onion	¾ cup rice
2 bay leaves	½ tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. parsley	Salt and pepper
1½ tbsp butter

Cut ham in small pieces. Mince onion and parsley and cook in butter until light brown. Add chili powder, bay leaves and ham and cook five minutes. Add water and when it boils add rice, carefully washed. Season to taste and boil until rice is tender, adding more water if necessary. Leftover ham, boiled or baked, can also be used.

Spice Cake

1 cup sugar	1 tsp. cinnamon
½ cup lard	1 tsp, cloves
1 scant cup hot water	2 tsp. soda.
½ cup molasses	2½ cups flour
2 eggs	½ asp. salt

cream lard with sugar, add molasses, then beaten eggs. Sift flour with soda, cinnamon, cloves, and salt, and add to first mixture alternately with hot water. This mixture will be rather thin, but do not add more flour, or you will spoil it.

Tomato Salad

Tomatoes Radishes
Celery Green onion

Scoop centers out of enough tomatoes for the number of persons to be served. You can peel the tomatoes or not, as you choose. Cut other ingredients fine and mix with your favorite salad dressing and ⅛ teaspoon celery salt. Fill tomato shells with mixture and wrap each tomato separately in waxed paper, if you are taking them on a picnic: You can serve as is, or with extra salad dressing.

SWISS STEAK is a good all year-round meat dish. It is as popular in warm as in cool weather. Cooked with early summer vegetables it makes an excellent main dish. Try the sour cream pudding.

Today's Menu

Fruit Juice
or
Fresh Fruit Cocktail
Swiss Steak Boiled New Potatoes
Banana Salad
Sour Cream Pudding
Coffee

Swiss Steak

Top cut Round steak	2 stalks celery
½ green pepper	¾ cup canned tomato soup
4 green onions	Flour

Wipe steak with damp cloth, rub with salt and pepper and sprinkle with ¼ cup flour, pounding it in with a blunt instrument or the edge of a plate. Treat both sides alike, then melt 2 tablespoons bacon fat in heavy skillet and brown the steak all over with a rather low fire. While steak browns, prepare vegetables, cut pepper in thin slices, ditto onions, dice celery. When steak is well browned, pile vegetables on top, add tomato soup and cook over low heat, covered, until meat is tender, which will take about 2 hours. Serve with vegetables on top of meat. Look at meat rather frequently and add a little hot water if it is inclined to burn.

South Cream Pudding

3 tablespoons shortening	2 cups flour
½ cup sugar	3 teasps. baking powder
1 egg	½ teasp. salt
½ cup bran	1 teasp. vanilla
1 cup milk
2 cups light brown sugar
2 cups thick sour cream

Blend shortening and sugar, add egg and beat well. Soak bran in milk. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add to creamed mixture alternately with bran and milk; add flavoring. Pour into deep baking pan and spread evenly. Sprinkle brown sugar overtop and pour on cream. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) about 45 minutes. Serve hot in upside-down squares.

Chili Con Carne with Soybeans
Buttered Beets or Beet Greens
Cabbage Salad Strawberry Mousse
Tea or Coffee

STRAWBERRY Mousse — One quart strawberries, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tall can evaporated milk, or one and two-thirds cups cream. Select sound, well-rippened berries, wash, hull, drain and mash. Press quickly through a coarse sieve or force through potato ricer. There will be from one and one-half to two cups strawberry pulp and juice. If berries are sour, add one-fourth cup more sugar. Add sugar to strawberry pulp and let stand in refrigerator twenty minutes to chill and to dissolve sugar. Chill milk or cream thoroughly and whip until very stiff. Cut and fold strawberry mixture lightly and thoroughly into milk. Turn into cold freezing pan in automatic refrigerator. This amount serves twelve.

Every fly in a house during the summer is no older than six months. Science has determined that flies born in autumn live through the winter in temperate climates.

Maine was the first part of the United States to be discovered, the first to be settled, the first to hold religious worship, the first to build a blockhouse for defense, the first to erect a house, and the first to construct a ship; also the first to have a chartered city.

New All-Gas Home Open For Public Inspection

A one-floor plan all-gas model home, located at Park Street and Atwater Avenue, has been completed and will be open for inspection this week end.

The home will be open to the public from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. Friday, from 2 p. m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. Saturday and from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. Sunday.

The home, built by Roy Young, Circleville contractor, has been constructed for small families of limited budgets who still wish to enjoy conveniences of higher priced dwellings. Although it is a single floor plan home, it is so constructed that it can be easily converted into a two-story home, with adequate room for the average size family.

Gas will be used for cooking, water heating, refrigeration and heating. Fully insulated throughout, and equipped with a gas heating and air conditioning unit, the house will maintain comfortable temperatures the year round.

Windows are supplied with Venetian blinds, and the kitchen finished with Marsh tile.

Materials for construction were furnished by the Circleville Lumber Company while the Gas Company installed the gas appliances and Crist Brothers the plumbing. The house was painted by Clarence Myers, wired by John Crawford and outside grading was done by William Paxson. The kitchen and bath room are furnished with linoleum from Griffith and Martin.

J. W. Sprung, Circleville, will occupy the house after the inspection has been made.

Gas For Cooking And Refrigeration

The Kitchen in the new home uses gas both for cooking and refrigeration. The Servel gas refrigerator and Tappan range were installed by The Gas Company. An automatic storage gas water heater assures a plentiful supply of hot water.

Gas heating and winter air conditioning will provide comfortable temperature in the home from fall through spring. The heating plant is entirely automatic. It is forced-air type, equipped with filters and humidity control.

The Gas Company is participating in the showing of this home in cooperation with the builder and other dealers. It is felt that these homes and remodeling which will result from a program such as this will assist materially in creating building and building activities—one of the basic industries.

Home Furnished By Mason Bros.

The model home at Park Street and Atwater Avenue is furnished by Mason Bros. In selecting the furnishings the builders chose well styled pieces in 18th century and Early American designs.

Everything is complete from rugs for the floors to Venetian blinds for the windows. Particular care was taken in choosing pieces that made for livability and color harmony at a budget price.

The furnishings include such item as Bigelow rugs, Pullman living room pieces nad Simmons mattresses and springs.

A turn of the valve and gas cooking is under way IMMEDIATELY, offering your choice of a thousand temperatures. Whether you want a simmer flame or a quick boil—a fast or slow oven—you can match or exceed the results of any other fuel. Cooks better—costs less.

REFRIGERATION

Gas refrigeration is the only 100% automatic refrigeration that gives permanent silence. Freezes without moving parts to wear out and require replacement. Offers safe food preservation and plenty of ice cubes for an average cost of less than 2 cents a day.

WATER HEATING

Gas for heating water costs so little that any family can well afford to have a piping hot supply on tap 24 hours a day. A modern service awaiting instant demands of kitchen, bath or laundry.

HOME HEATING

You can enjoy the convenience, comfort, cleanliness and safety of automatic gas heat for little more than the fuel cost of old-fashioned fuel. All incidental costs considered, gas heat costs no more. Ask for a free heating survey of your home.

New All-Gas Home Open For Public Inspection

A one-floor plan all-gas model home, located at Park Street and Atwater Avenue, has been completed and will be open for inspection this week end.

The home will be open to the public from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. Friday, from 2 p. m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. Saturday and from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. Sunday.

The home, built by Roy Young, Circleville contractor, has been constructed for small families of limited budgets who still wish to enjoy conveniences of higher priced dwellings. Although it is a single floor plan home, it is so constructed that it can be easily converted into a two-story home, with adequate room for the average size family.

Gas will be used for cooking, water heating, refrigeration and heating. Fully insulated throughout, and equipped with a gas heating and air conditioning unit, the house will maintain comfortable temperatures the year round.

Windows are supplied with Venetian blinds, and the kitchen finished with Marsh tile.

Materials for construction were furnished by the Circleville Lumber Company while the Gas Company installed the gas appliances and Crist Brothers the plumbing. The house was painted by Clarence Myers, wired by John Crawford and outside grading was done by William Paxson. The kitchen and bath room are furnished with linoleum from Griffith and Martin.

J. W. Sprung, Circleville, will occupy the house after the inspection has been made.

Gas For Cooking And Refrigeration

The Kitchen in the new home uses gas both for cooking and refrigeration. The Servel gas refrigerator and Tappan range were installed by The Gas Company. An automatic storage gas water heater assures a plentiful supply of hot water.

Gas heating and winter air conditioning will provide comfortable temperature in the home from fall through spring. The heating plant is entirely automatic. It is forced-air type, equipped with filters and humidity control.

The Gas Company is participating in the showing of this home in cooperation with the builder and other dealers. It is felt that these homes and remodeling which will result from a program such as this will assist materially in creating building and building activities—one of the basic industries.

Home Furnished By Mason Bros.

The model home at Park Street and Atwater Avenue is furnished by Mason Bros. In selecting the furnishings the builders chose well styled pieces in 18th century and Early American designs.

Everything is complete from rugs for the floors to Venetian blinds for the windows. Particular care was taken in choosing pieces that made for livability and color harmony at a budget price.

The furnishings include such item as Bigelow rugs, Pullman living room pieces nad Simmons mattresses and springs.

Today's Fashion

COTTON ticking in candy stripes is stiffening the sports scene this season. Here is a beach ensemble of the stuff in red and white, dashing enough for a trip around the reefs with Capt. Henry Morgan. Under the pocketed skirt and bolero there is a navy blue rayon jersey bra and shorts. The big hat is topped with the jersey and can be bent into any becoming line which wards off sunburn.

FOREIGN POLICY OF F. D. FLAYED N G. O. P. STAND

Republicans Assume Title As "Peace Party" After Convention Action

LANDON OFFERS PRAISE

Several New Deal Offices To Be Retained Under 1940 Platform

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 — The Republican party was hailed by its leaders today as the "peace party," following adoption of a platform which stingingly denounces New Deal foreign policy, charges it is leading the country dangerously close to war.

Alf M. Landon, the party's 1936 nominee, endorsed the outspoken foreign plank, terming it "one that takes into consideration the realties of the situation."

"It will allow our candidate to campaign effectively in view of changing world conditions on the foreign issue—the greatest issue before the people today," the former Kansas governor added.

Both Senator Nye of North Dakota and Rep. Fish of New York, leading congressional isolationists, hailed the plank as setting up the peace versus war issue for the fall election.

The platform, subject to ten days committee debate, was adopted unanimously by the G. O. P. convention last night.

The party's foreign stand was summarized officially by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, in the following words:

"The party stands for Americanism, prepardness and peace. No foreign war. An army and navy so strong that no unfriendly power can successfully atack America or its essential outposts.

"National defense is vital to our existence as a nation of free people. A free economy is necessary in war as in peace. People of the United States feel and express a sympathetic interest in all oppressed peoples everywhere who are struggling to establish or maintain their homes and their liberties."

Responsibility Placed

In the body of platform—which was to have been of "post card" length but turned out to be 3,500 words—the New Deal is charged witih responsibility for our unprepardness and "the consequences of involvement in war."

Virtually the only point on which isolationists failed to write all their ideas into the platform, was the section which favors extension of aid to "all peoples fighting for liberty or whose liberty is threatened."

But even this clause was carefully qualified by the anti-intervention bloc so as to restrict such aid to that which "is not in violation of international law or inconsistent with the requirements of our own national defense."

On domestic issues, the platform sweepingly declares that "the New Deal administration has failed America." The sense of the platform, however, was not to wreck much of the New Deal legislation, but rather a promise to better and strengthen it.

Such administration pets as the Wagner Labor Act and the Securities Exchange Commission were inferentially endorsed when the platform suggested merely their revision, and not their extinction.

Indicating another campaign issue—provided President Roosevelt runs again—was a plank calling for an amendment to the constitution to bar third terms.

Other highlights of the platform were:

Local control of relief with elimination of "waste asd politics."

Increased old age pensions, if financially possible, and broadening of social security legislation.

To Continue Benefits

Continuance of farm benefits as an emergency, with reclamation, soil conservation, and "sound rural credit."

Require congressional approval of reciprocal trade treaties, though endorsement of "the principle of reciprocity."

Reduction in government expenditures and steps to lead to "a sounder fiscal policy."

An anti-fifth column section, pledging the Republicans "to get rid of the borers from within" and calling for the strict enforcement of laws against undesirable aliens.

Plantain-lily for edgings

Plantain-lily, also known as the Japanese day-lily, or Hosta, is listed in many catalogues as Funkia. These plants are ecellent for growing in sunny or even partially shaded borders. Frequently they are used as formal edgings along walks or driveways. Still another use is as a ground cover for lily-beds. The foliage of the funkia provide protection for the other lily bulbs and the flowers blend well with those of the taller lilies.

As shown in the accompanying illustration, the flowers of the funkia are lily-like. Certain species have white flowers, while others are of a blue-lavender color. The foliage of the various species differ, some leaves being variegated, others are a solid green, and three is on variety which has blue-gray leaves.

Funkia is a hardy perennial which is propagated by division. In Winter the foliage dies down to the ground.

SIXTH YOUTHFUL OUTLAWS HELD AS MURDERERS

CINCINNATI, June 27 — The hold-up shooting April 12 of Ulrich Faeth, 40-year-old tailor, was included by police today in the nearly 100 robberies, safe-crackings, burglaries and auto thefts said to have been cleared up by the ardest of six member of a youthful crime ring.

One of the youths held admitted, police said, that he "pulled 108 jobs" in the last six months. Four other members of the ring still were being sought.

Thoseheld were Harrison Harvey, 19; Charles Boldt, 21; Edward Hoots, 25; Herbert Humphreys, 22; Frank Gold, 22, and Lloyd Taylor, 22. All live in Cincinnati.

BRITISH NAVAL FORCES BEATEN OFF, NAZIS SAY

Continued Attacks On Isle Objectives Reported By Beriln

BERLIN, June 27—Attempts by British naval forces to carry out offensive activities against German positions on the French channel coast were "easily repulsed," the German high command asserted in its official communique today.

(Editor's Note: An official British announcement yesterday stated that raiding British units had landed at several points, inflicting casualties on German troops and returning safely to England with "much valuable information.")

The communique said:

(Editor's Note: This indicated the Germans have not yet occupied Bordeaux, last seat of the government of Premier Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain.)

"Reconnoiterings by weaker enemy naval forces on the northern French coast on the night of June 25 were easily repulsed.

"One of our submarines reports that it sank 35,000 tons of shipping.

"British planes continued bombings of western Germany last night without causing military damage. Several civilians were killed and injured.

"Two British planes were shot down by anti-aircraft and another by chasers.

"Major Schueler, commander of an infantry regiment, especially distinguished himself in the Rhone crossing of June 15 and in subsequent battles piercing the Maginot Line and storming the Vocges passes."

AUTO ACCIDENTS DROP

STOCKHOLM—The number of motor accidents in Sweden in 1939 decreased by more than 1,000 cases as compared to 1938. Last year smaller and larger casualties amounted to 15,497.

BAD DRIVING NIGHT

PHILADELPHIA — Thirty percent more automobile accidents occur in Philadelphia on Saturday night than on any other night, Superintendent of Police Howard P. Sutton revealed. "People are more inclined to drink intoxicating liquor on Saturday," he explained.

Large numbers of fish remain torpid in months at a time in frozen Siberian rivers, but upon the approach of spring the fish seem none the worse for their long imprisonment.

SIXTH YOUTHFUL OUTLAWS HELD AS MURDERERS

CINCINNATI, June 27 — The hold-up shooting April 12 of Ulrich Faeth, 40-year-old tailor, was included by police today in the nearly 100 robberies, safe-crackings, burglaries and auto thefts said to have been cleared up by the ardest of six member of a youthful crime ring.

One of the youths held admitted, police said, that he "pulled 108 jobs" in the last six months. Four other members of the ring still were being sought.

Thoseheld were Harrison Harvey, 19; Charles Boldt, 21; Edward Hoots, 25; Herbert Humphreys, 22; Frank Gold, 22, and Lloyd Taylor, 22. All live in Cincinnati.

'GRADS' IN DEMAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—It may not be the result of the European War but the 1940 graduating class of Brown University is having an easy time finding jobs. Assistant Dean Edson R. Rand estimated that 90 percent of the 200 students have found employment ranging from a congressional secretary to a career in undertaking.

BRITISH NAVAL FORCES BEATEN OFF, NAZIS SAY

Continued Attacks On Isle Objectives Reported By Beriln

BERLIN, June 27—Attempts by British naval forces to carry out offensive activities against German positions on the French channel coast were "easily repulsed," the German high command asserted in its official communique today.

(Editor's Note: An official British announcement yesterday stated that raiding British units had landed at several points, inflicting casualties on German troops and returning safely to England with "much valuable information.")

The communique said:

"In accordance with the armistice terms, our troops advanced as far as the Dorgogne section east of Bordeaux.

(Editor's Note: This indicated the Germans have not yet occupied Bordeaux, last seat of the government of Premier Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain.)

"Reconnoiterings by weaker enemy naval forces on the northern French coast on the night of June 25 were easily repulsed.

"One of our submarines reports that it sank 35,000 tons of shipping.

"On the night of June 26-27, German fighters again attacked docks, piers and aviation plants in England. One German plane failed to return.

"British planes continued bombings of western Germany last night without causing military damage. Several civilians were killed and injured.

"Two British planes were shot down by anti-aircraft and another by chasers.

"Major Schueler, commander of an infantry regiment, especially distinguished himself in the Rhone crossing of June 15 and in subsequent battles piercing the Maginot Line and storming the Vocges passes."

AUTO ACCIDENTS DROP

STOCKHOLM—The number of motor accidents in Sweden in 1939 decreased by more than 1,000 cases as compared to 1938. Last year smaller and larger casualties amounted to 15,497.

BAD DRIVING NIGHT

PHILADELPHIA — Thirty percent more automobile accidents occur in Philadelphia on Saturday night than on any other night, Superintendent of Police Howard P. Sutton revealed. "People are more inclined to drink intoxicating liquor on Saturday," he explained.

Large numbers of fish remain torpid in months at a time in frozen Siberian rivers, but upon the approach of spring the fish seem none the worse for their long imprisonment.

The HOUSE OF THE MONTH In Circleville

DEWEY TO LEAD IN INITIAL TEST, OBSERVERS SAY

Second Ballot to Change

Most G. O. P. master-minds expect a violent change on the second ballot, with Taft taking the lead away from Dewey. This will result, th ' say, because of Willkie raids on the Dewey following, with Taft also getting a slice out of the Dewey ranks with other gains from the favorite-son group.

Taft managers claim his gains will continue until he is nominated on the fourth or fifth ballot. Taft himself made this claim the other day and his managers say every report since then confirms his prediction.

Dewey managers violently disagreed. They asserted the New Yorker had been given assurances his original strength will hold intact against all assaults from Taft and Willkie and that he will gain, rather than lose after the first ballot.

Dewey himself was cheerful and optomistic, declaring:

"It never looked better at any time. After reviewing the whole situation I am extremely confident. I expect to be nominated on an early ballot."

Willkie, on the eve of balloting, contradicted both Taft and Dewey forecasts. Asked whether he expected to be nominated, Willkie called the query an "academic question" and acted as though he had the nomination "in the bag." He conferred last night with Senator Bridges, leading to rumors of a Willkie-Bridges deal of some sort, but both denied this.

Bandwagons Possible

Despite all these claims, the convention's choice remained in doubt. Best opinion was that Taft can win if he forges ahead of Dewey and the Deweyites flock to his banner to carry out their threat to "stop Willkie." On the other hand, Dewey can win if he leads on the first ballot and shows any sign thereafter of gaining strength. Should he gain after the first ballot, a Dewey bandwagon may rattle through convention hall.

A sign of the uncertainty about the nominee is the persistence and hopefulness of the other dark horses—men like Senator Vandenberg and Macnider who say they are in this fight to the finish. Only the expectation of a bolt of political lightning can be behind their reasoning.

All sorts of rumors flocked through Convention Hall but the delegates paid them little attention. There may be some deals in the offing, but careful inquiry indicates they will not take effect on either the first or second ballots. There is always the possibility of a deal having been negotiated to take effect if there are certain changes in the standing of the rivals after the first ballot. In this connection, the most frequent report is that if Taft passes Dewey on the second ballot, the Dewey forces then will help nominate Taft. Of course, both hhehadquarters deny existence of such a deal.

MORE

The convention assembled at 9 a. m. (Circleville time) today to hear nominating speeches. The names of Dewey, Gannett, Taft and Willkie were presented last night and in that order. Dewey and Taft got the greatest reception from the delegates, Willkie from the galleries. The Dewey, Gannett and Taft demonstrations were orderly, but Willkie's provoked fistfights all over the hall. Two swell fights were staged over the New York and Virginia standards.

There was one anti-Willkie reaction among the delegates to last night's demonstrations. Willkie's strength was in the galleries. Rumors have prevailed that thousands of convention tickets were turned over to Willkie's headquarters and, right or wrong, the delegates saw an element of proof in these rumors in the fact that the galleries were loaded with Willkie supporters—and at a time when delegates are screaming for tickets for their own faith and kin.

Today, the convention got the names of Machnider, Vanderberg, James, Bridges and Bushfield. On the James presentation, the host state of Pennsylvania was to do its best to show the visitors just how a demonstration ought to be staged. But these demonstrations are an old political custom, which has little effect on the votes. The proof was given when the friends of Senator McNary of Oregon reserved the right to present his name, but he declined the honor.

AMERICANS IN BRITISH ISLES URGED TO LEAVE

LONDON, June 27 — American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy today urged every American not compelled to remain to leave England on the S. S. Washington, sailing from New York tomorrow for Galway, Ireland.

Kennedy warned that the Washington possibly will be the last boat available to take American refugees back to the United States, and the American Government must assume that Americans who do not return on it are prepared to stay in England for the duration of the war at their own risk.

out in a fury of fighting in and over England, the like of which has not yet been seen in this war.

From the Far East came reports that Japan today had completed encirclement of the British crown colony of Hongkong by occupying the Sauechung area. Yesterday Britons dynamited bridges connecting Hongkong with the mainland as Japanese troops "on maneuver" began surrounding the colony.

Meanwhile, in Tokyo the government prepared to enforce a new "Monroe Doctrine" policy for the Far East, and Japanese officially denied sending warships to South American waters. Two Japanese training ships are on a summer cruise in South America, it was stated, and the opinion was expressed in Tokyo that these had been mistaken for warships.

JULY 17 SELECTED FOR PAN-AMERICAN CONFAB

HAVANA, June 27—July 17 today had been set as the date, and Havana as the location, of a Pan-American conference to consider the situation growing out of the war in Europe. The 21 Pan-American republics will meet at the request of the United States to discuss phases of the European situation which affect the Western Hemisphere.

HERALD TRIBUNE WANTS WILLKIE FOR PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, June 27 — In a three-column front-page editorial, the New York Herald Tribune today urged the Republican national convention to nominate Wendell Willkie for president.

of conferences with Landon on the convention situation and plans for the fall campaign.

These two—one the titular head of the party and the other leader of its powerful group of legislators—are known to be determined to see that the convention nominates a man who will assure election of Republican senators and congressmen as well as win himself.

Both are friendly with Thomas Dewey and Sen. Bob Taft, who now have the support of the largest block of delegates. Martin, his friends indicated, will bring the two rival candidates together in the interest of party harmony before a final decision is made on the convention choice.

Martin—Joe to his devoted congressional followers — maintains a virtual court in his small hotel suite when he is not wielding the gavel on the convention platform.

Callers stream in and out of his room, many of them congressmen and delegates seeking advice on how to vote in the free-for-all Republican fight. Thus far, it is known, he has declined to take a position between rival candidates.

MARKET PRICES GO UP; AVIATION STOCKS LEADING

NEW YORK, June 27—A new rally was recorded in the stock market today, lifting prices one to as much as three points at their morning highs.

The list was buoyant from the opening and continued to display a firm undertone despite light profit-taking toward the end of the first hour. Utilities, aviations, chemicals and steels were the best groups.

Trading generally, however, was comparatively light as Wall Street awaited this afternoon's balloting to choose the Republican presidential nominee. Sales in the first hour totaled 170,000 shares.

Douglas Aircraft led its group upward with an extreme gain of better than three points, while American Aid Lines rose more than two. United Aircraft, Lockheed and Glenn L. Martin each advanced at least a point.

Mussolini, who will soon be 58, publicly ignores his birthdays. That's o. k., Duce. The world isn't in a congratulatory mood, anyway.

ARMED BANDITS RAID BANK; FLEE WITH BIG LOOT

RIEGELSVILLE, Pa., June 27 —Four armed bandits today held up the president and cashier of the First National Bank at Riegelsville and escaped in an automobile with a reported $10,000 to $15,000 taken from the bank's cages, officials of the institution reported.

The bandits herded William L. Leattor, president, and Raymond Phillips, assistant cashier, into a vault with five customers and rifled the cages. They left the vault unlocked, but warned the prisoners not to notify police until they had made their getaway.

FATHER OF FOUR GOES TO PRISON AS EMBEZZLER

BOWLING GREEN, June 27 — John G. Reed, former clerk of the Ross Township Board of Education, today was sentenced to one to 21 years in the Ohio penitentiary and fined $23,000 after pleading guilty to embezzling $11,649 in school funds.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Earl K. Solether ordered Reed to pay a fine double the amount of money he allegedly took. Reed, father of four children admitted taking the money making out false bills and having the board chairman sign blank checks to pay them.

The former school official turned over his personal property to attone for his act, officials said.

HOOVER DENIES RUMORS THAT HE BELIEVES WAR WILL BE ENDED IN FALL

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 — Former President Herbert Hoover, through his secretary, Lawrence Richey, today dismissed as "gossip" reports that he has predicted peace in Europe before the November election.

The possibility of an end of the European war, and its influence on the election, has become one of the most frequent topics of conversation among Republican leaders.

Most of them, declaring that an accurate forecast is impossible, maintain that the Republicans must ignore the trend of the war in laying their campaign plans.

North Carolina mines 55 percent of the mica used in the United States.

World at a Glance

NEVER in a generation, at least, has a political national convention met with as badly worried a crowd of party strategists in attendance asthe aggregation the G. O. P. brought together this year in Philadelphia to pick the Republican's candidates and adopt their platform for the coming season's campaign and next November's election.

The rank and file of the delegates always are out, more or less, for a mere jamboree ,but the managers have an acute sense of responsibility. Most of them also have interests of their own to serve.

In normal times they draw their conclusions as to the future in the light of their past experiences, as Patrick Henry expressed it. This time, however, as they gathered, they already were in the midst of experiencing their experiences.

Any news extra that appears on the street, any tap of a ticker tape, any peep from a radio broadcaster is liable to nullify the result of all (and the most recent) calculations. The infernal war can't be reckoned with half on hour in advance. Neither can cabinet changes. Neither can anything.

The Democratic convention probably won't be quite so bad. The Democrats have a certain sort of a policy established. Te Republicans' policy, however, manifestly, when the convention assembled, presented a situation calling for some sort of an alternative policy.

But how hit on a popular alternative with the whole outlook changing every few minutes? That's what's had the G. O. P. high command guessing. It doesn't admit it. It professes to have seen the whole thing as clearly as crystal from the outset, but the truth is that it scarcely knows which pary is which these times, with Democrats denouncing the Democartic administration and Republicans accepting Democratic cabinet portfolios.

WOMEN'S VOTES

Talk at the Republican convention started off to the effect that womens' votes will be an exceptionally potent factor in the November election. This is on the theory that war issues are especially of interest to women.

It may be so. But how does it interest 'em?

One argument is that they don't like having their men folk conscripted into the military service, getting killed maybe (their loved ones), while they stay at home, suffering all the miseries of armed conflict, yet getting, for themselves, none of the fun out of it.

Yet it's contended contrariwise that women, on an average, are more belligerent than men are.

It's recalled that, during the last war, many of our wives and sisters were kept busy on our thoroughfares, pinning white feathers on suspected male slackers. Many a youngster, it's recounted, donner a uniform because his sweetheart told him to.

Then again, this talk of industrial conscription!

That envisages the conscription of young girls, for work in factries or for washing soldiers' colthes or dishes or for nursing or whatnot. How'll they like that what?

All this has been hashed over thoroughly at Philadelphia.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

A national convention isn't as enjoyable an affair to attend as sometimes it's represented.

It's all very well for a political potentate, who hires all the rooms on a whole floor of some big hotel to accommodate himself and his followers, or for a multi-millionaire, who rents a local mansion for convention week, or for whom some social club sets a suite apart.

It isn't so pleasant, though, for an ordinary delegate, who has to sleep on a cot in an overcrowded hotel's corridor.

Philadelphia, by the way, isn't a good town for any sort of a big gathering. It hasn't the transient accommodations for an enormous emergency crowd. I know lots of folk who arranged in advance to commute daily into the Quaker City from as far away as Washington, and back again nightly, for the Republican blow-out, because Philly couldn't house them. And that isn't very comfortable either, the trains and planes are so jammed.

REOPEN THE BIDDING

NEVER BE the player whose pass closes the bidding if careful thought indicates that definite action on your part, reopening the bidding, is likely to produce a better score for your side. If the last bidder's call has been passed by his partner, you must weigh the evidence pro and con. This is especially definite, so far as probabilities are concerned, when his bid was the one and only bid yet made. You now know, from his partner's pass, that your own partner has some strength, the main question being how much and where located.

In any such situation, it may be that your partner's chief strength is in the opponent's suit, and he can set it substantially. Your best move usually, therefore, when your own hand is of very close to average strength, is to double. Among advanced players, this cannot deceive your partner into thinking you have a lot of strength, such as you would need to double in a position where the bidding stays open if you pass.

1. (A) Double. Your partner can pass if loaded for diamonds, or bid his suit if not. (B) Pass. Not strong enough for any free bid.

2. (A) Double. (B) Bid 1-Spade, if not vulnerable; pass if vulnerable.

3. (A) Double. (B) Pass.

Second Ballot to Change

Most G. O. P. master-minds expect a violent change on the second ballot, with Taft taking the lead away from Dewey. This will result, th ' say, because of Willkie raids on the Dewey following, with Taft also getting a slice out of the Dewey ranks with other gains from the favorite-son group.

Taft managers claim his gains will continue until he is nominated on the fourth or fifth ballot. Taft himself made this claim the other day and his managers say every report since then confirms his prediction.

Dewey managers violently disagreed. They asserted the New Yorker had been given assurances his original strength will hold intact against all assaults from Taft and Willkie and that he will gain, rather than lose after the first ballot.

Dewey himself was cheerful and optomistic, declaring:

"It never looked better at any time. After reviewing the whole situation I am extremely confident. I expect to be nominated on an early ballot."

Willkie, on the eve of balloting, contradicted both Taft and Dewey forecasts. Asked whether he expected to be nominated, Willkie called the query an "academic question" and acted as though he had the nomination "in the bag." He conferred last night with Senator Bridges, leading to rumors of a Willkie-Bridges deal of some sort, but both denied this.

Bandwagons Possible

Despite all these claims, the convention's choice remained in doubt. Best opinion was that Taft can win if he forges ahead of Dewey and the Deweyites flock to his banner to carry out their threat to "stop Willkie." On the other hand, Dewey can win if he leads on the first ballot and shows any sign thereafter of gaining strength. Should he gain after the first ballot, a Dewey bandwagon may rattle through convention hall.

A sign of the uncertainty about the nominee is the persistence and hopefulness of the other dark horses—men like Senator Vandenberg and Macnider who say they are in this fight to the finish. Only the expectation of a bolt of political lightning can be behind their reasoning.

All sorts of rumors flocked through Convention Hall but the delegates paid them little attention. There may be some deals in the offing, but careful inquiry indicates they will not take effect on either the first or second ballots. There is always the possibility of a deal having been negotiated to take effect if there are certain changes in the standing of the rivals after the first ballot. In this connection, the most frequent report is that if Taft passes Dewey on the second ballot, the Dewey forces then will help nominate Taft. Of course, both hhehadquarters deny existence of such a deal.

The convention assembled at 9 a. m. (Circleville time) today to hear nominating speeches. The names of Dewey, Gannett, Taft and Willkie were presented last night and in that order. Dewey and Taft got the greatest reception from the delegates, Willkie from the galleries. The Dewey, Gannett and Taft demonstrations were orderly, but Willkie's provoked fistfights all over the hall. Two swell fights were staged over the New York and Virginia standards.

There was one anti-Willkie reaction among the delegates to last night's demonstrations. Willkie's strength was in the galleries. Rumors have prevailed that thousands of convention tickets were turned over to Willkie's headquarters and, right or wrong, the delegates saw an element of proof in these rumors in the fact that the galleries were loaded with Willkie supporters—and at a time when delegates are screaming for tickets for their own faith and kin.

Today, the convention got the names of Machnider, Vanderberg, James, Bridges and Bushfield. On the James presentation, the host state of Pennsylvania was to do its best to show the visitors just how a demonstration ought to be staged. But these demonstrations are an old political custom, which has little effect on the votes. The proof was given when the friends of Senator McNary of Oregon reserved the right to present his name, but he declined the honor.

AMERICANS IN BRITISH ISLES URGED TO LEAVE

LONDON, June 27 — American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy today urged every American not compelled to remain to leave England on the S. S. Washington, sailing from New York tomorrow for Galway, Ireland.

Kennedy warned that the Washington possibly will be the last boat available to take American refugees back to the United States, and the American Government must assume that Americans who do not return on it are prepared to stay in England for the duration of the war at their own risk.

FRANCE'S SHIPS JOINING BRITISH AFRICAN FORCES

London Says Major Units Pledging Selves For Fight To Finish

Decoux, an expert on far eastern naval defense.

(Editor's note: A Reuters (British) dispatch from Tokyo quoted the Japanese news agency Domei as stating that Japanese troops had no intention of invading Indo-China.)

General De Gaulle in blaming Petain for France's downfall declared that lack of French tanks and motorized equipment, which, he said, caused the debacle, was entirely the fault of Petain who as marshal of France led the armies up to 1935.

LULL PREVAILS; LONDON AWAITS GERMAN ATTACK

out in a fury of fighting in and over England, the like of which has not yet been seen in this war.

From the Far East came reports that Japan today had completed encirclement of the British crown colony of Hongkong by occupying the Sauechung area. Yesterday Britons dynamited bridges connecting Hongkong with the mainland as Japanese troops "on maneuver" began surrounding the colony.

Meanwhile, in Tokyo the government prepared to enforce a new "Monroe Doctrine" policy for the Far East, and Japanese officially denied sending warships to South American waters. Two Japanese training ships are on a summer cruise in South America, it was stated, and the opinion was expressed in Tokyo that these had been mistaken for warships.

JULY 17 SELECTED FOR PAN-AMERICAN CONFAB

HAVANA, June 27—July 17 today had been set as the date, and Havana as the location, of a Pan-American conference to consider the situation growing out of the war in Europe. The 21 Pan-American republics will meet at the request of the United States to discuss phases of the European situation which affect the Western Hemisphere.

HERALD TRIBUNE WANTS WILLKIE FOR PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, June 27 — In a three-column front-page editorial, the New York Herald Tribune today urged the Republican national convention to nominate Wendell Willkie for president.

The editorial described Willkie as "a man of the people" and "heaven's gift to the nation in its time of crisis."

of conferences with Landon on the convention situation and plans for the fall campaign.

These two—one the titular head of the party and the other leader of its powerful group of legislators—are known to be determined to see that the convention nominates a man who will assure election of Republican senators and congressmen as well as win himself.

Both are friendly with Thomas Dewey and Sen. Bob Taft, who now have the support of the largest block of delegates. Martin, his friends indicated, will bring the two rival candidates together in the interest of party harmony before a final decision is made on the convention choice.

Martin—Joe to his devoted congressional followers — maintains a virtual court in his small hotel suite when he is not wielding the gavel on the convention platform.

Callers stream in and out of his room, many of them congressmen and delegates seeking advice on how to vote in the free-for-all Republican fight. Thus far, it is known, he has declined to take a position between rival candidates.

MARKET PRICES GO UP; AVIATION STOCKS LEADING

NEW YORK, June 27—A new rally was recorded in the stock market today, lifting prices one to as much as three points at their morning highs.

The list was buoyant from the opening and continued to display a firm undertone despite light profit-taking toward the end of the first hour. Utilities, aviations, chemicals and steels were the best groups.

Trading generally, however, was comparatively light as Wall Street awaited this afternoon's balloting to choose the Republican presidential nominee. Sales in the first hour totaled 170,000 shares.

Douglas Aircraft led its group upward with an extreme gain of better than three points, while American Aid Lines rose more than two. United Aircraft, Lockheed and Glenn L. Martin each advanced at least a point.

ARMED BANDITS RAID BANK; FLEE WITH BIG LOOT

RIEGELSVILLE, Pa., June 27 —Four armed bandits today held up the president and cashier of the First National Bank at Riegelsville and escaped in an automobile with a reported $10,000 to $15,000 taken from the bank's cages, officials of the institution reported.

The bandits herded William L. Leattor, president, and Raymond Phillips, assistant cashier, into a vault with five customers and rifled the cages. They left the vault unlocked, but warned the prisoners not to notify police until they had made their getaway.

FATHER OF FOUR GOES TO PRISON AS EMBEZZLER

BOWLING GREEN, June 27 — John G. Reed, former clerk of the Ross Township Board of Education, today was sentenced to one to 21 years in the Ohio penitentiary and fined $23,000 after pleading guilty to embezzling $11,649 in school funds.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Earl K. Solether ordered Reed to pay a fine double the amount of money he allegedly took. Reed, father of four children admitted taking the money making out false bills and having the board chairman sign blank checks to pay them.

The former school official turned over his personal property to attone for his act, officials said.

HOOVER DENIES RUMORS THAT HE BELIEVES WAR WILL BE ENDED IN FALL

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 — Former President Herbert Hoover, through his secretary, Lawrence Richey, today dismissed as "gossip" reports that he has predicted peace in Europe before the November election.

The possibility of an end of the European war, and its influence on the election, has become one of the most frequent topics of conversation among Republican leaders.

Most of them, declaring that an accurate forecast is impossible, maintain that the Republicans must ignore the trend of the war in laying their campaign plans.

World at a Glance

NEVER in a generation, at least, has a political national convention met with as badly worried a crowd of party strategists in attendance asthe aggregation the G. O. P. brought together this year in Philadelphia to pick the Republican's candidates and adopt their platform for the coming season's campaign and next November's election.

The rank and file of the delegates always are out, more or less, for a mere jamboree ,but the managers have an acute sense of responsibility. Most of them also have interests of their own to serve.

In normal times they draw their conclusions as to the future in the light of their past experiences, as Patrick Henry expressed it. This time, however, as they gathered, they already were in the midst of experiencing their experiences.

Any news extra that appears on the street, any tap of a ticker tape, any peep from a radio broadcaster is liable to nullify the result of all (and the most recent) calculations. The infernal war can't be reckoned with half on hour in advance. Neither can cabinet changes. Neither can anything.

The Democratic convention probably won't be quite so bad. The Democrats have a certain sort of a policy established. Te Republicans' policy, however, manifestly, when the convention assembled, presented a situation calling for some sort of an alternative policy.

But how hit on a popular alternative with the whole outlook changing every few minutes? That's what's had the G. O. P. high command guessing. It doesn't admit it. It professes to have seen the whole thing as clearly as crystal from the outset, but the truth is that it scarcely knows which pary is which these times, with Democrats denouncing the Democartic administration and Republicans accepting Democratic cabinet portfolios.

WOMEN'S VOTES

Talk at the Republican convention started off to the effect that womens' votes will be an exceptionally potent factor in the November election. This is on the theory that war issues are especially of interest to women.

It may be so. But how does it interest 'em?

One argument is that they don't like having their men folk conscripted into the military service, getting killed maybe (their loved ones), while they stay at home, suffering all the miseries of armed conflict, yet getting, for themselves, none of the fun out of it.

Yet it's contended contrariwise that women, on an average, are more belligerent than men are.

It's recalled that, during the last war, many of our wives and sisters were kept busy on our thoroughfares, pinning white feathers on suspected male slackers. Many a youngster, it's recounted, donner a uniform because his sweetheart told him to.

Then again, this talk of industrial conscription!

That envisages the conscription of young girls, for work in factries or for washing soldiers' colthes or dishes or for nursing or whatnot. How'll they like that what?

All this has been hashed over thoroughly at Philadelphia.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

A national convention isn't as enjoyable an affair to attend as sometimes it's represented.

It's all very well for a political potentate, who hires all the rooms on a whole floor of some big hotel to accommodate himself and his followers, or for a multi-millionaire, who rents a local mansion for convention week, or for whom some social club sets a suite apart.

It isn't so pleasant, though, for an ordinary delegate, who has to sleep on a cot in an overcrowded hotel's corridor.

Philadelphia, by the way, isn't a good town for any sort of a big gathering. It hasn't the transient accommodations for an enormous emergency crowd. I know lots of folk who arranged in advance to commute daily into the Quaker City from as far away as Washington, and back again nightly, for the Republican blow-out, because Philly couldn't house them. And that isn't very comfortable either, the trains and planes are so jammed.

National Loop Competition To Be More Heated

Pittsburgh And St. Louis, Both Slow Crews To Get Started, Promise Bitter Fight

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 27—The mad scramble known as the National eague pennant race is about to get even wilder by virtue of the fact at, as of today, the two fastest travelling clubs are the Pittsburgh irates and St. Louis Cardinals, which are deep in the second division ut threatening to do something about it, according to statistics gath-ed by Bill Brandt, head of the league's service bureau. The Pirates nd Cardinals probably are too far back to win as the clubs head toward July 4, traditional gauge on probable outcome of the race, but they are not too far back to get in the battle.

Oddly enough these two laggards, which were figured among the contenders at the start of the season, have put on their spurt with the aid of additions. The Pirates started when Catcher Al Lopez was lured away from the Boston Bees and the Cardinals did an abrupt about face with the switch in managers which but Billy Southworth in the pilot's seat previously occupied by Ray Blades.

Whether the injection of new blood into the situation caused the sudden uplift, Mr. Brandt nor we wouldn't know, but Lopez began working with the Pirate pitchers on June 16 and Southworth took over for the Cards just two days sooner and the teams immediately went into high. Since then the Pirates have won eight out of 11 and the Cards seven out of 12.

This, mind you, by clubs which all season have been mired to their briskets in defeats. They could come on and toughen things up.

Manager Frankie Frisch, hard-fighter of the old school, was expected to do wonders with the Pirates, but found them so totally inept that the club hasn't yet found the rarified atmosphere of the first division. Addition of Lopez should accomplish at least that, the answer being that when your pitchers go bad hire a catcher.

The Cardinal situation is even more striking, inasmuch as they were favored to win the pennant, but were completely confused instead by the strange tactics of Manager Blades. Southworth seems to have proved that the club can play ball.

And if you think the National League race has been a honey up to now, watch it from here on, regardless of which club may eventually win.

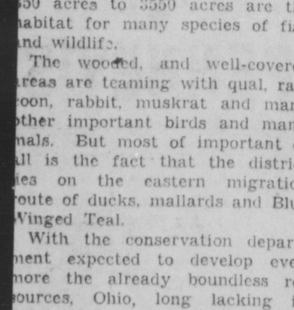
At The Cliftona



The stellar aggregation of Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Robert Young and Frank Morgan head the distinguished cast of "The Moral Storm," film adaptation of the powerful Phyllis Bottome best-seller story of a family caught in the upheaval of a political storm, which will be the headline attraction starting Sunday on the Cliftona screen.

Filmed under the direction of Frank Borzage, responsible for many of the screen's greatest successes, "The Mortal Storm" unfolds the timely and heart-stirring narrative of a family "somewhere in Europe," happy, contented, tolerant, then suddenly awakening to find itself in the throes of a new order of things resulting from political oppression.

The family divides against itself. The sons become involved in the hatreds and passions of the political movement. The daughter breaks her engagement to the man who has loved her for years. The father is taken to a concentration camp. Dramatic moment after dramatic moment punctuate the story whic hrises to a powerful climax in the love of the daughter for a man of her own ideals, and their attempt to escape the prison walls of hatred and intolerance around them.

Tony Learns Some Inside Stuff

A lesson in how to use his dukes is given Tony Galento, the battling Jersey barkeep, by no less an authority than Tony, Jr., who is visiting his fighting father in his Summit, N. J., training camp where Tony, Sr., is prepping for his July 2 bout with Max Baer in Jersey City.

BIRDS IN THIRD PLACE, BUT FAR BEHIND LEADERS

COLUMBUS, June 27 — Ten games behind Kansas City and 11½ behind Minneapolis, the other six American Association clubs continued today to battle fiercely among themselves, but seem content not to bother the serene pace of the leaders.

The 12 to 3 victory of the Columbus Club over Milwaukee serves to emphasize the point. The win in which the now-hot-now-cold Red Birds exploded nine runs in the final stanza, lifted them from the second division to a third-place tie, spotlighting the fact that there is only a six-game gap between third place and the cellar.

The teams seem able to whip each other, but not the leading Kansas City or Minneapolis Clubs. Toledo almost did it yesterday, but the Blues shoved over a run in the eighth for a 6 to 6 tie, and the game was called then to allow the Toledo outfit to catch a train.

Minneapolis gained a half-game on the Blues by coming from behind to eke out a 6 to 5 victory over the Louisville Colonels. Louisville smacked out all their runs in the first canto, but the Millers kept pecking away a run at a time, to win out in the seventh.

The St. Paul Saints made a clean sweep of their series with the slipping Indianapolis Indians, sinking them 7 to 2 to run their own win streak to four straight and keeping the Indians in the cellar.

WORK OF HANEY MAKING BROWNS STRONG OUTFIT

NEW YORK, June 27—If the Browns continue to flirt with the first division as they have been doing lately, they will almost surely succeed in having their pilot, little Fred Haney, named as the manager of the year.

Fred has done a remarkable job with the club. When the season opened, the baseball wise men took a look at Fred's nice assortment of castoffs, promptly picked them to wind up in the American League cellar as the bookies immediately quoted 100 to 1 against their chances.

"What," everybody asked, "is poor Haney going to use for pitchers?"

Well, Fred's pitchers may be nothing to write home about but he has them turning in an occasional good game and when they do his club wins. What's more to the point, he Browns are improving all the time under Fred's guidance and if they finish fifth he will have worked wonders.

His charges didn't do so well yesterday when George Caster, the losingest pitcher in either league set them down, 9 to 4, largely by virtue of Sam Chapman's base-clogged homer.

The defeat dropped them out of the first division and sent the Yanks up there. With Red Ruffing giving only six hits and Joe DiMaggio driving all the runs, the Yanks trimmed the Indians 3-1. The White Sox came from behind in the ninth to nose out the Senators, 7-6; and when young Johnny Gorsica blew in the ninth, the Red Sox beat the Tigers, 3-1.

The only daylight games in the National were played by the Phils and Pirates, the Phils taking the opener, 4-2, and dropping the nightcap, 11-6. The Giants topped the Cards 10 to 9 in the 10th inning of a night game.

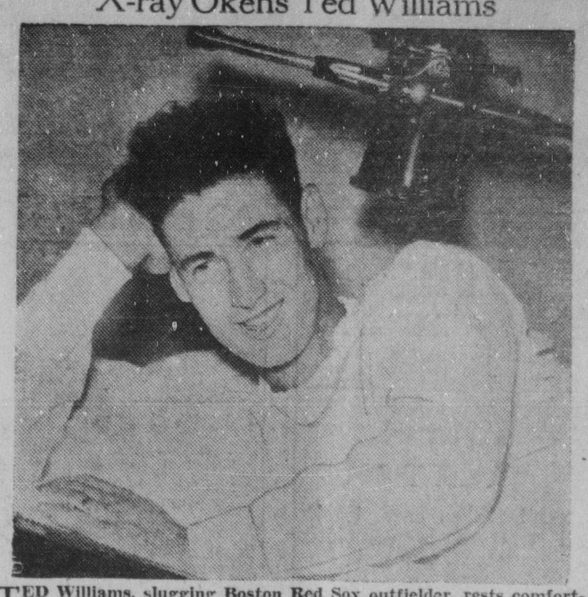
MANY CHAMPIONS MEET AT FRESNO IN COMPETITION

FRESNO, Cal., June 27—Champions of everything from the 100-meters dash to the 3000-meter walk and the hop, step and jump were in Fresno today from virtually every state in the union for the fifty-second annual running of the National AAU track and field championships in the Fresno State College stadium Friday and Saturday.

Due here from Minneapolis are all save one of the stars who won championships at last Saturday's national collegiate meet. Due, too, are practically all defending national AAU champions who won titles at Lincoln, Nebraska, last year. Fehr of Michigan State, two miler, will be the only NCAA champion who won't compete.

Veterans, including Glenn Cunnigham, the "grand old man" of American foot racing, and newcomers like Harold Davis,the Salinas Junior College sprint sensation, will all be banded together in the two days of spirited competition for records and titles.

X-ray Okehs Ted Williams



TED Williams, slugging Boston Red Sox outfielder, rests comfortably beneath an X-ray machine in Cleveland's Lakeside Hospital. The X-ray showed Williams broke no bones when he collided with his teammate, Roger Cramer, as they both went after a fly ball.

National Loop Competition To Be More Heated

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 27—The mad scramble known as the National League pennant race is about to get even wilder by virtue of the fact that, as of today, the two fastest travelling clubs are the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, which are deep in the second division but threatening to do something about it, according to statistics gathered by Bill Brandt, head of the league's service bureau. The Pirates and Cardinals probably are too far back to win as the clubs head toward July 4, traditional gauge on probable outcome of the race, but they are not too far back to get in the battle.

Oddly enough these two laggards, which were figured among the contenders at the start of the season, have put on their spurt with the aid of additions. The Pirates started when Catcher Al Lopez was lured away from the Boston Bees and the Cardinals did an abrupt about face with the switch in managers which but Billy Southworth in the pilot's seat previously occupied by Ray Blades.

Whether the injection of new blood into the situation caused the sudden uplift, Mr. Brandt nor we wouldn't know, but Lopez began working with the Pirate pitchers on June 16 and Southworth took over for the Cards just two days sooner and the teams immediately went into high. Since then the Pirates have won eight out of 11 and the Cards seven out of 12.

This, mind you, by clubs which all season have been mired to their briskets in defeats. They could come on and toughen things up.

Manager Frankie Frisch, hard-fighter of the old school, was expected to do wonders with the Pirates, but found them so totally inept that the club hasn't yet found the rarified atmosphere of the first division. Addition of Lopez should accomplish at least that, the answer being that when your pitchers go bad hire a catcher.

The Cardinal situation is even more striking, inasmuch as they were favored to win the pennant, but were completely confused instead by the strange tactics of Manager Blades. Southworth seems to have proved that the club can play ball.

And if you think the National League race has been a honey up to now, watch it from here on, regardless of which club may eventually win.

REDS RETURNING HOME AFTER BEAN TOWN RAIN

CINCINNATI, June 27—Speeding back to Crosley Field to engage the Chicago Cubs in a series opening tomorrow, the Cincinnati Reds were somewhat disappointed today after rain robbed them of a triple chance to improve their lead over the rest of the National League at the expense of the seventh-place Boston Bees.

A steady drizzle forced postponement of yesterday's twin bill, and thus caused cancellation of the entire three-game series.

Minneapolis gained a half-game on the Blues by coming from behind to eke out a 6 to 5 victory over the Louisville Colonels. Louisville smacked out all their runs in the first canto, but the Millers kept pecking away a run at a time, to win out in the seventh.

The St. Paul Saints made a clean sweep of their series with the slipping Indianapolis Indians, sinking them 7 to 2 to run their own win streak to four straight and keeping the Indians in the cellar.

WORK OF HANEY MAKING BROWNS STRONG OUTFIT

NEW YORK, June 27—If the Browns continue to flirt with the first division as they have been doing lately, they will almost surely succeed in having their pilot, little Fred Haney, named as the manager of the year.

Fred has done a remarkable job with the club. When the season opened, the baseball wise men took a look at Fred's nice assortment of castoffs, promptly picked them to wind up in the American League cellar as the bookies immediately quoted 100 to 1 against their chances.

"What," everybody asked, "is poor Haney going to use for pitchers?"

Well, Fred's pitchers may be nothing to write home about but he has them turning in an occasional good game and when they do his club wins. What's more to the point, he Browns are improving all the time under Fred's guidance and if they finish fifth he will have worked wonders.

His charges didn't do so well yesterday when George Caster, the losingest pitcher in either league set them down, 9 to 4, largely by virtue of Sam Chapman's base-clogged homer.

The defeat dropped them out of the first division and sent the Yanks up there. With Red Ruffing giving only six hits and Joe DiMaggio driving all the runs, the Yanks trimmed the Indians 3-1. The White Sox came from behind in the ninth to nose out the Senators, 7-6; and when young Johnny Gorsica blew in the ninth, the Red Sox beat the Tigers, 3-1.

The only daylight games in the National were played by the Phils and Pirates, the Phils taking the opener, 4-2, and dropping the nightcap, 11-6. The Giants topped the Cards 10 to 9 in the 10th inning of a night game.

HEROES AND GOATS

By International News Service

HEROES: Sam Chapman, Athletics, who homered with bases loaded as Athletics beat Browns; Joe DiMaggio who drove in all his team's runs as Yanks downed Indians.

GOATS: Johnny Gorsica who blew up in ninth as Red Sox beat Tigers; Joe Haynes who lost a ninth inning lead as White Sox beat Senators.

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS LOSE

32-25 Decision Goes To Washington C. H.; Bob Friece's 80 Best

Pickaway Country Club golfers lost a 32-25 match Wednesday afternoon when they invaded the Washington C. H. club. Nineteen golfers participated for each team, Circleville winning seven matches and tying one.

The best score of the day was an 80 turned in by Bob Friece, No. 1 man on the Circleville team. He combined 42 and 38 for his fine total.

The Washington C. H. team will come to Circleville at a later date to return the match.

MANY CHAMPIONS MEET AT FRESNO IN COMPETITION

FRESNO, Cal., June 27—Champions of everything from the 100-meters dash to the 3000-meter walk and the hop, step and jump were in Fresno today from virtually every state in the union for the fifty-second annual running of the National AAU track and field championships in the Fresno State College stadium Friday and Saturday.

Due here from Minneapolis are all save one of the stars who won championships at last Saturday's national collegiate meet. Due, too, are practically all defending national AAU champions who won titles at Lincoln, Nebraska, last year. Fehr of Michigan State, two miler, will be the only NCAA champion who won't compete.

Veterans, including Glenn Cunnigham, the "grand old man" of American foot racing, and newcomers like Harold Davis,the Salinas Junior College sprint sensation, will all be banded together in the two days of spirited competition for records and titles.

Service Clubs Requested To Help In Scout Drive

Executives Meet To Talk Of District Problems; Pickaway Lagging

$750 QUOTA REQUIRED

Father-Son Hike Planned At Later Date; 15 Boys To Enter Camp

New impetus was given to the Boy Scout sustaining fund drive at a district meeting of Pickaway County scouters in Memorial Hall Wednesday evening when Field Executive Robert Scanland appointed Robert Kelsey, advancement committee chairman, to request the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs respectively to aid in the drive.

Advancement Chairman Adkins said that he felt certain both organizations would help in the solicitation and added that if such action were taken he believed the $750 quota could be reached within two weeks. At present $300 of the quota has been received.

It was pointed out at the meeting that of the eight counties in the scout district, Pickaway County is the fartherest below its quota. Field Executive Scanland told the group that service to the reorganized Circleville Cub Pack and the nine existing Pickaway County Scout troops was dependent on the success of the sustaining fund drive.

Reviewing the possibilities for scouting in the community he stated that the county had only 200 scouts out of 2,000 eligible boys.

Father-Son Hike Planned

Dan McClain, chairman of the camping committee, told the group that a Father and Son hike was being planned for local scouts, although no date has been set for the event.

District Commissioner David Goldschmidt announced the appointment of four new neighborhood scout commissioners. Dr. J. J. Baker has been made neighborhood commissioner for Troop 107 of the Methodist Church and for the Circleville Cub Pack, Melvin Mettler for Troop 205 of the Presbyterian Church and Troop 158 of the American Legion, Walter Jones, Sr., for Troop 86 of the Second Baptist Church, and Drexel Lemay for Troop 146 of New Holland and Troop 43 of Williamsport.

Plans are now being made for about 15 Circleville scouts to attend the Scout Camp, located four miles south of Delaware on Route 23, from July 15 to July 30. At the scout reservation the boys will have an opportunity to learn new scouting methods at a cost of 85 cents a day. This is the only camp now available for scouts in this community.

Rich Plums Ripe for Picking

MUCH speculation has been voiced over the future status of Allied possessions in the Far East, particularly those of France. Japan, the third member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis, so far has taken no active part in the European struggle, but always is ready to expand her influence and, if the opportunity arises, might try to enrich herself at the expense of the Allies. One of the richest plums is French Indo-China which has great natural resources. It is not known whether Germany will permit France to keep the colony, place it under the Nazi flag or allow Japan to take it as a reward for forcing the Allies to keep a watchful eye on the Orient.

JOHN CALDWELL NAMED LIQUOR STORE CLERK

John Caldwell, South Court Street, Thursday was appointed a clerk in Store 26, Pickaway County, by State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor.

Caldwell was one of 66 persons appointed or re-appointed by Taylor from Civil Service lists to posts in state liquor stores.

PEEBLES DISCHARGED AS CLUB GOLF INSTRUCTOR

Dr. G. D. Phillips, president of the Pickaway Country Club, announced Thursday that Robert Peebles, golf professional, had been discharged effective immediately. Mr. Peebles came to Circleville at the start of the present golf season.

No arrangements have been completed for a successor.

DUDLEY T. FISHER, SR., IS DEAD AT HILLIARDS

COLUMBUS, June 27—Dudley T. Fisher, Sr., father of the cartoonist and a machine designer and supervisor at the Jeffrey Manufacturing Co., was dead today of a heart ailment. He was 80 years old.

Fisher, who lived at Hilliards, had been in ill health for a year, his condition becoming serious about a week ago. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

whom Fletcher showed the statement laughed heartily, but persuaded him not to give it to the press.

Organized Spontaneity

For a "spontaneous" campaign, the Willkie blitzkrieg was one of the best organized ever seen. It completely outshone the campaigns of his rivals, who were actively in the field many months before his name was even "mentioned".

Starting with six different headquarters a week before the convention opened, by Monday at least a dozen Willkie camps were going full blast. All were elaborately decorated and manned with well-dressed and cheery young men and women to whom the experience was a new and exciting adventure.

One Willkie stratagem, however, did not ring the bell. This was a flood of telegrams from their home towns and states that greeted the delegates upon arrival. Going through them, they found that many of the wires had the same spelling and grammatical mistakes. Also that batches of the signatures appeared to be in alphabetical order — indicating a common source.

Willkie rivals promptly raised the cry of 'holding company bill tactics", referring to the deluge of fake telegrams sent by utilities during the congressional battle over the New Deal holding company "death sentence".

Roosevelt Men

Making the rounds of the various headquarters, Thomas ("Tip") O'Neil, veteran political writer of The Philadelphia Record, wandered into the main Willkie menage. He was welcomed by a modish, brisk young man who, apparently thinking "Tip" was a delegate, launched into an obviously rehearsed spiel about the wonders of Willkie.

He wound up with "And now, how about a Willkie button?"

" thanks," replied O'Neil. "You see, to be frank, I'm a Roosevelt man."

"Shake." exclaimed the Willkie worker. "So was I until I got this job."

The "H" in "Bridges"

Cherrist convention headquarters is that of Senator H. Styles Bridges, one of the darkest of dark horses. The discouragements are many, but the stocky young New Englander and his lieutenants have carried on bravely just the same.

Representative Charles Hawks, raw Wisconsin first-termer whose appointment as Bridges' campaign manager is still an unexplained mystery, was a bit disconcerted the first day he arrived in Philadelphia, Carlisle Bargeron, jovial ex-Georgia newsman and Democrat who is Bridges' publicity master mind, arranged a press conference for Hawks, and when the reporters arrived they found themselves being carefully scrutinized by two obvious plain-clothesmen.

"What's the idea?" a newsman asked.

Bargeron could throw no light on the matter, so the reporter asked one of the cops.

"We got a tip," he replied, "that this guy Harry Bridges was here and we came up to keep an eye on him."

Note—the "H" in Bridges' name stands for "Henry". Quipped the irrepressible Bargeron, "Yes sir, boys, it's just what I've always contended. This convention has either got to nominate Bridges or deport him."

Merry-Go-Round

Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew was not exaggerating when he declared, "This is an independent convention". It's so independent that the delegates are elbowing the bosses out of the camp and clambering on the Willkie bandwagon. . . . Former Senator George Moses of New Hampshire has aged a bit since he was a Washington headliner, but his wit is a razor-sharp as ever. Cracked Moses, "There will be a lot of disappointments when the convention is over, but appointments will heal all wounds." . . . .In his drive to grab New England delegates, Willkie propositioned Senator Styles Bridges to be his floor manager. . . . .What with managing the convention, holding endless conferences, and numerous radio and press engagements, hard-working National Chairman John Hamilton has averaged less than five hours sleep a night.

DRUNK DRIVER CITED

Charges of driving on South Court and Walnut Streets when intoxicated were filed against Robert Peebles, 52, Walnut Street, after he was arrested Wednesday by Patrolman Charles Mumaw and Constable Oscar Woeber.

LIGHT RUNNER CITED

Edwin Frasier, 23, Williamsport, was arrested by Patrolmen George Green and Charles Mumaw Wednesday night for running a red light at Court and Mound Streets. He posted a $3 bond to appear in traffic court Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

GYPSIES OBTAIN $21 AT WILLIAM HORN RESIDENCE

Gypsies stopped at the home of William Horn, East Union Street, Wednesday afternoon and left $21 richer.

Horn said that he did not realize his pocket had been picked until after the gypsies had gone.

Police Chief William McCrady said that no other thefts had been reported.

Father-Son Hike Planned At Later Date; 15 Boys To Enter Camp

New impetus was given to the Boy Scout sustaining fund drive at a district meeting of Pickaway County scouters in Memorial Hall Wednesday evening when Field Executive Robert Scanland appointed Robert Kelsey, advancement committee chairman, to request the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs respectively to aid in the drive.

Advancement Chairman Adkins said that he felt certain both organizations would help in the solicitation and added that if such action were taken he believed the $750 quota could be reached within two weeks. At present $300 of the quota has been received.

It was pointed out at the meeting that of the eight counties in the scout district, Pickaway County is the fartherest below its quota. Field Executive Scanland told the group that service to the reorganized Circleville Cub Pack and the nine existing Pickaway County Scout troops was dependent on the success of the sustaining fund drive.

Reviewing the possibilities for scouting in the community he stated that the county had only 200 scouts out of 2,000 eligible boys.

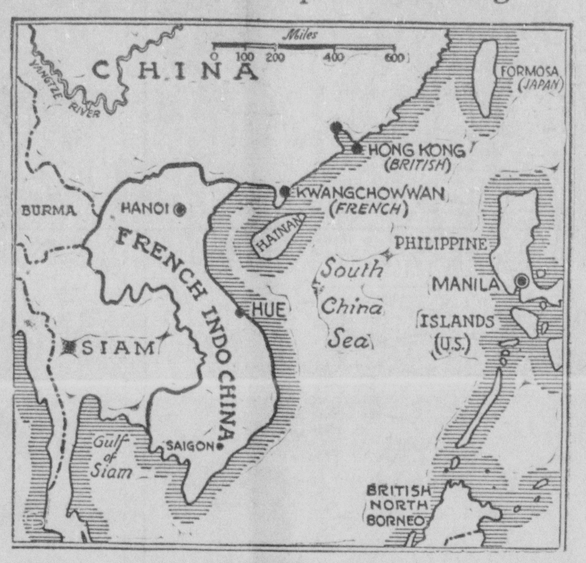
Father-Son Hike Planned

Dan McClain, chairman of the camping committee, told the group that a Father and Son hike was being planned for local scouts, although no date has been set for the event.

District Commissioner David Goldschmidt announced the appointment of four new neighborhood scout commissioners. Dr. J. J. Baker has been made neighborhood commissioner for Troop 107 of the Methodist Church and for the Circleville Cub Pack, Melvin Mettler for Troop 205 of the Presbyterian Church and Troop 158 of the American Legion, Walter Jones, Sr., for Troop 86 of the Second Baptist Church, and Drexel Lemay for Troop 146 of New Holland and Troop 43 of Williamsport.

Plans are now being made for about 15 Circleville scouts to attend the Scout Camp, located four miles south of Delaware on Route 23, from July 15 to July 30. At the scout reservation the boys will have an opportunity to learn new scouting methods at a cost of 85 cents a day. This is the only camp now available for scouts in this community.

Rich Plums Ripe for Picking



MUCH speculation has been voiced over the future status of Allied possessions in the Far East, particularly those of France. Japan, the third member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis, so far has taken no active part in the European struggle, but always is ready to expand her influence and, if the opportunity arises, might try to enrich herself at the expense of the Allies. One of the richest plums is French Indo-China which has great natural resources. It is not known whether Germany will permit France to keep the colony, place it under the Nazi flag or allow Japan to take it as a reward for forcing the Allies to keep a watchful eye on the Orient.

JOHN CALDWELL NAMED LIQUOR STORE CLERK

John Caldwell, South Court Street, Thursday was appointed a clerk in Store 26, Pickaway County, by State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor.

PEEBLES DISCHARGED AS CLUB GOLF INSTRUCTOR

Dr. G. D. Phillips, president of the Pickaway Country Club, announced Thursday that Robert Peebles, golf professional, had been discharged effective immediately. Mr. Peebles came to Circleville at the start of the present golf season.

No arrangements have been completed for a successor.

DUDLEY T. FISHER, SR., IS DEAD AT HILLIARDS

COLUMBUS, June 27—Dudley T. Fisher, Sr., father of the cartoonist and a machine designer and supervisor at the Jeffrey Manufacturing Co., was dead today of a heart ailment. He was 80 years old.

Fisher, who lived at Hilliards, had been in ill health for a year, his condition becoming serious about a week ago. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery.

whom Fletcher showed the statement laughed heartily, but persuaded him not to give it to the press.

Organized Spontaneity

For a "spontaneous" campaign, the Willkie blitzkrieg was one of the best organized ever seen. It completely outshone the campaigns of his rivals, who were actively in the field many months before his name was even "mentioned".

Starting with six different headquarters a week before the convention opened, by Monday at least a dozen Willkie camps were going full blast. All were elaborately decorated and manned with well-dressed and cheery young men and women to whom the experience was a new and exciting adventure.

One Willkie stratagem, however, did not ring the bell. This was a flood of telegrams from their home towns and states that greeted the delegates upon arrival. Going through them, they found that many of the wires had the same spelling and grammatical mistakes. Also that batches of the signatures appeared to be in alphabetical order — indicating a common source.

Willkie rivals promptly raised the cry of 'holding company bill tactics", referring to the deluge of fake telegrams sent by utilities during the congressional battle over the New Deal holding company "death sentence".

Roosevelt Men

Making the rounds of the various headquarters, Thomas ("Tip") O'Neil, veteran political writer of The Philadelphia Record, wandered into the main Willkie menage. He was welcomed by a modish, brisk young man who, apparently thinking "Tip" was a delegate, launched into an obviously rehearsed spiel about the wonders of Willkie.

He wound up with "And now, how about a Willkie button?"

" thanks," replied O'Neil. "You see, to be frank, I'm a Roosevelt man."

"Shake." exclaimed the Willkie worker. "So was I until I got this job."

The "H" in "Bridges"

Cherrist convention headquarters is that of Senator H. Styles Bridges, one of the darkest of dark horses. The discouragements are many, but the stocky young New Englander and his lieutenants have carried on bravely just the same.

Representative Charles Hawks, raw Wisconsin first-termer whose appointment as Bridges' campaign manager is still an unexplained mystery, was a bit disconcerted the first day he arrived in Philadelphia, Carlisle Bargeron, jovial ex-Georgia newsman and Democrat who is Bridges' publicity master mind, arranged a press conference for Hawks, and when the reporters arrived they found themselves being carefully scrutinized by two obvious plain-clothesmen.

"What's the idea?" a newsman asked.

Bargeron could throw no light on the matter, so the reporter asked one of the cops.

"We got a tip," he replied, "that this guy Harry Bridges was here and we came up to keep an eye on him."

Note—the "H" in Bridges' name stands for "Henry". Quipped the irrepressible Bargeron, "Yes sir, boys, it's just what I've always contended. This convention has either got to nominate Bridges or deport him."

Merry-Go-Round

Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew was not exaggerating when he declared, "This is an independent convention". It's so independent that the delegates are elbowing the bosses out of the camp and clambering on the Willkie bandwagon. . . . Former Senator George Moses of New Hampshire has aged a bit since he was a Washington headliner, but his wit is a razor-sharp as ever. Cracked Moses, "There will be a lot of disappointments when the convention is over, but appointments will heal all wounds." . . . .In his drive to grab New England delegates, Willkie propositioned Senator Styles Bridges to be his floor manager. . . . .What with managing the convention, holding endless conferences, and numerous radio and press engagements, hard-working National Chairman John Hamilton has averaged less than five hours sleep a night.

DRUNK DRIVER CITED

Charges of driving on South Court and Walnut Streets when intoxicated were filed against Robert Peebles, 52, Walnut Street, after he was arrested Wednesday by Patrolman Charles Mumaw and Constable Oscar Woeber.

LIGHT RUNNER CITED

Edwin Frasier, 23, Williamsport, was arrested by Patrolmen George Green and Charles Mumaw Wednesday night for running a red light at Court and Mound Streets. He posted a $3 bond to appear in traffic court Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

GYPSIES OBTAIN $21 AT WILLIAM HORN RESIDENCE

Gypsies stopped at the home of William Horn, East Union Street, Wednesday afternoon and left $21 richer.

Horn said that he did not realize his pocket had been picked until after the gypsies had gone.

BRIDGEPORT MAN KILLED IN LONDONDERRY MISHAP

LONDONDERRY, June 27 — A verdict of accidental death was returned today in the fatal shooting of Arthur T. Gilles, 48, of Bridgeport, who was killed when he dropped his gun during a ground hog hunt.

Red objects are said still to be held sacred by many Pennsylvania Dutch, such as animals, berries, wax tapers, stones, etc.
